A non-panicked take from an executive who has hospitals in one of the states where the media has screamed most since November. "We didn't have to transfer any non-COVID patients. Staffing was the biggest issue." (Partly because nurses could make more working short-term jobs.)

Our ICUs were ful[redacted] little misleading just because we do have tele beds and areas that we can put those patients. I wasn't really concerned with bed availability, really just staffing so that we could use all of our beds. We did go on ED diversion at times (which happens often in non-COVID times as well). We didn't have to transfer any non-COVID patients. Staffing was the biggest issue (combo of holidays plus quarantined staff plus registry issues). A big problem was that registry agencies were asking $200/hr for nurses, which led to nurses wanting to work registry shifts elsewhere and a general problem for staffing.The long days and mental toll were definitely part of it too (remembe[redacted] been a

So about that vaccine shortage:

Alex,

I'm a sales rep / vendor that occasionally (1x per year) goes to Mt. Sinai hospitals for work.

Last week, I was aggressively contacted by them (2 emails and a voicemail) over several days, urging me to schedule an appointment to get a Covid vaccine. "We would love to get you in this week!"

I ignored all 3 attempts to schedule me, and was surprised they would even offer it to vendors at this early stage. It is NOT required (yet) for even staff, so the urgency struck me as odd.

Today, I hear panic porn on 1010wins that Sinai announced they've had to cancel patient vaccine

Primary

Today, I hear panic porn on 1010wins that Sinai announced they've had to cancel patient vaccine appointments next week BECAUSE OF A VACCINE SHORTAGE.

There is either:

a) Terrible mismanagement of vaccines there, that they would offer to young, healthy, occasional outside visitors before their patients and community. or more likely

b) They've purposefully manufactured this shortage in order to cause more fear/panic, and more lies are planned to come down on us next week.

3/ WE HAVE NO IDEA. We didn't enroll enough of them in the trials to have any way to be sure. It is possible that the 14% failure rate in people over 65 rises to 30% or 40% in people over 80. I'm not saying that happens. I'M SAYING WE DON'T KNOW.

But the story gets EVEN WORSE.

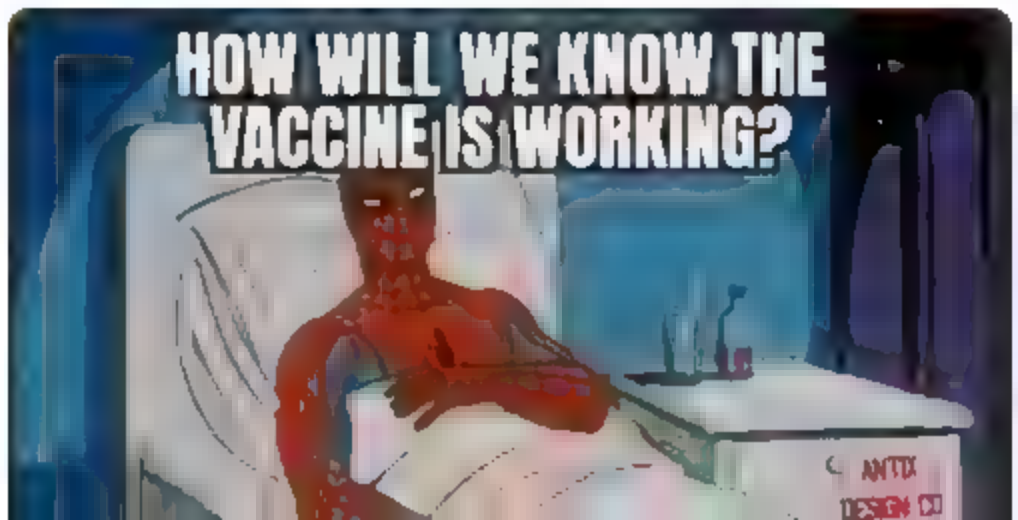
4/ Why? Because we don't know if failure to produce a immune response to the vaccine CORRELATES WITH FAILURE TO PRODUCE AN IMMUNE RESPONSE TO THE VIRUS.



In other words, it is possible the vaccine works for everyone except the people who need it...

5/ Think that's impossible? Unfortunately, it is EXACTLY what a huge study of British flu vaccine recipients over 65 showed last year - influenza vaccination reduced neither hospitalizations nor mortality.

Flu vaccination does not reduce hospitalizations, death in older adults

By Erin Michael

Source/Disclosures

Influenza vaccination strategies targeting older adults may not be as effective as previously thought, according to a study published in the Annals of Internal Medicine that found increased vaccination rates did not reduce hospitalizations or mortalities among adults aged 65 years and older.

Yep. The U.K. is now past its winter peak. Nothing to do with vaccinations, btw - under 5% of the population has gotten a single dose and not even 1 in 150 people have gotten two - this is Farr's Law at work. The natural course of the epidemic.

Ian Shepherdson ✓ @IanShepherdson
UK Covid cases are falling fast. New cases today down 31% compared to a week ago; the 7-day average has fallen 19% from the peak. New hospital admissions have started to fall too; they'll plunge next week. If we stick at it, things will be so much...

This is honest, at least.

Btw: there will be a turnaround soon, likely long before either the vaccines or the lockdowns would matter, though you can count on them getting credit.

(How do I know? Because when the chart looks like this, virus is almost done virusing.)

Eric Topol @EricTopol
When you've vaccinated more than 25% of the population and been in a lockdown for 3 weeks, you wouldn't expect to see this. Hope for a turnaround soon.

So what's funny about this: you're agreeing with me without knowing it. Remind me when those "quite strict restrictions" began? Maybe Dec. 19, maybe Oct. 31, maybe September? (Screenshots to follow.) Nothing makes any difference, the virus couldn't care less.

Microbiologist @Florian_Krammer is FAR from an anti-vaxxer. So you should take this warning from him about being vaccinated if you have already had #Covid very seriously. If the first dose causes severe side effects in those folks, it's anyone's guess what the second will do.

Florian, we are seeing people who were PCR positive more than 90 days ago badly responding to first dose of Pfizer vaccine (severe side effects last for weeks).
I started to recommend Abs test before taking the shot.
Any standard guidance may I double check for such cases? Thanks

So I understand: you recommend people who have had #covid and recovered be vaccinated, but take only one dose? What's the scientific or clinical trial evidence on which you base this advice? Or are you simply so concerned about the side effect profile you've seen in those cases?

California stops administering a batch of 330,000 (!) @moderna_tx vaccine doses after at least six health care workers at a single vaccination site suffered allergic reactions requiring medical attention in a few hours.

Those come with a refund?

California official calls for pause on specific Moderna vaccine due to possible allergic reaction providers pause the administration of lot '041L20A' of the Moderna COVID-19 vaccine due to possible allergic reactions that are under investigation.

"A higher-than-usual number of possible allergic reactions were reported with a specific lot of Moderna vaccine administered at one community vaccination clinic. Fewer than 10 individuals required medical attention over the span of 24 hours," Dr. Pan said.

"Our goal is to provide the COVID vaccine safely, swiftly and equitably," said Dr. Pan said in a statement. "A higher-than-usual number of possible allergic reactions were reported with a specific lot of Moderna vaccine administered at one community vaccination clinic. Fewer than 10 individuals required medical attention over the span of 24 hours. Out of an extreme abundance of caution and also recognizing the extremely limited supply of vaccine, we are recommending that providers use other available vaccine inventory and pause the administration of vaccines from Moderna lot 041L20A until the investigation by the CDC.

1/ I receive messages like this rarely - far more rarely than you might expect given the reported coronavirus death toll. That said, we should never forget the virus can and does kill. And I hope the family members of its victims know I never intend to demean their suffering...

> I write you not expecting that you'll ever read this. I just wanted you to gain some perspective. I'm not trying to get into some medical/scientific debate with you, as you're clearly more well read in those areas. I write you as a grieving son who just lost his father. My dad was 68 years old, but not a frail old man in a nursing home, not a feeble man with oodles of co-morbidities. My father died of Covid. 5 weeks ago he was just fine. After 37 days in the hospital, various iterations of oxygen supplementation, eventually intubation, my dad died. Alone. Scared. Uncomfortable.

This is the problem. My mom is desperate for hers. My sisters are ready to stand in line to get theirs. Whenever I suggest any of this, they look at me like I'm insane. So, is it better to just shut up and let them roll the dice? Or risk alienating them further??

LOCKDOWN FOREVER! FLATTEN THE CURVE!

Except data on cell phone traffic at hospitals shows visits are DOWN 34% compared to last January.

There is no curve to flatten. There is no hospital crisis. There never was, really.

This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

BTW: I am really not sure what @amazon is doing with Part 3 at this point. The ebook is for sale again, but the paperback remains in limbo (the paperback was rejected first this afternoon).

I assume this is just a technical delay at this point, but who knows?

So poor kids who don't get to go school are suffering terribly now. But so are rich kids, especially those with Karen parents in blue states. A man who tutors wealthy grade and high schoolers offers a terrifying take on what he's seeing.

So Britain is getting reports of vaccine adverse events "thick and fast," but relax - that's what their version of the FDA expected.

And if you want to know what the reports actually say... 8-ball says ask again later. Information is for me, not for thee!

Fun fact: Israel now has far more people vaccinated than anywhere else in the world.

Israel now also has more new positive Covid tests per-capita than any other country in the world.

I would say at this point even if Israeli cases and hospitalizations DO start to roll immediately, like today, unless they drop very fast it will be hard to give vaccines credit, since the country is deep enough into the Farr's Law curve that it SHOULD be dropping already...

Guessing @ScottGottliebMD has seen some internal @pfizer survey/polling data when he says this.

But assuming he's right and 60-70% of people have serious doubts about the vaccine, I don't see how even Uncle Joe and The Public Health Experts can play the mandatory tune.

1/ Stunning email from a manager at a nursing home that has had a serious #Covid outbreak, 12 residents dead.

I urge you to wrap your head around the protocols they had - including twice-weekly tests. “Nothing worked.”

The virus is airborne. Once it enters group homes, it’s in.

Alex, I have been following you since early last summer on Twitter and I appreciate your lone voice in this pandemic.

The next part is my personal and professional experience with Covid and some of the frustration. I don’t even go there with the constantly changing CMS and state directives that constantly contradict themselves. I am actually on a school board and what I wrote below I had given to the board about my experience.

At work we put in all of the protocols that were known or that we were able to do back in March.

I was in close contact during this time with staff who were testing positive, probably had spent time with greater than 10, so I felt that my getting the virus was inevitable. I took my camper up to Kingsport to stay away from my family for a while. My first night in the camper I began to have severe leg pains and night sweats, low grade fever. I tested three times that week and tested negative each time. 9 days after I felt that I had the virus I finally tested positive. Unfortunately that was one day after I returned home. Thankfully I was home though because for what was coming, I

Germany will almost completely end national lockdown rules within weeks:

"All schools and shops will now be able to open as long as they observe hygiene and social distancing rules..."

The refusal to let go of "social distancing" rules despite abundant evidence it's useless in stopping transmission makes it clear this is being used to set a precedent that people shall no longer be permitted to gather in large numbers.

Someone out there doesn't like crowds.

Amazing data here: Mexico, with essentially uncontrolled #sarscov2 spread, has the second-most mask wearing of any country; the Nordic countries, which have almost no transmission, have the least. Canada is well below the US. Because masks work!

Florida: 223,000 positive #SARSCoV2 tests in three weeks - 10,000 a day - and ~NO CHANGE in hospitalizations or ICU occupancy statewide. You say epidemic, I say a lot of people getting colds, let's call the whole thing off. (We'll see if Florida has any excess mortality in July.)

the thing that makes it worse is the media including newspapers won't put the demographics of deaths. Cases are basically useless if you don't know what happens. As of this a.m. from GA DOH:
17 & under 1 death since March
18-39 = 107

schools can then continue as normal, as neither the number of people nor the distance rules will apply to children of kindergarten and primary school age. This also applies to the leisure activities of children of kindergarten and primary school age, e.g. sports, youth and leisure activities and music education.

Students in upper secondary schools and universities may resume attending class in their school buildings, but there are limits to the number of people; no more than 50 individuals may be in the same area in those schools, and caution must be taken to maintain the 2-metre distance between individuals.

If the lockdown state school restrictions continue into next year, the US will be at a large and increasing gap in international education; it is ironic but probably not coincidental that big cities with troubled school systems may be hardest hit.

A well sourced booklet
This is a short but devastating takedown of the usefulness of masks and should be required reading for every politician in the country. They should have to rebut every point in the book before they can implement a mask mandate.

If the vaccine provides ONE season of immunity and this is a middle-of-the-road reaction in healthy adults at extremely low risk from #sarscov2 - as seems increasingly obvious - how can we possibly say the cost-benefit analysis makes any sense?

Update from an angry mother:

> Hi, Alex.
> Just an update. The patient is up, finally, and much better than yesterday. Her BP was freakishly low when she woke up, but that's probably just dehydration. Still has a headache. But she slept late and just now went downstairs (first time in over 24 hours) and ate some breakfast (likewise). She's now chatty and smiling, so I'm no longer worried. She'll spend today resting and hydrating. And that'll be two full days lost to recovering from the vaccine.
> Maybe this is just a one-off. Maybe older people's immune systems won't react so violently. Maybe Pfizer and Moderna will post record profits, and save the world along with Biden.

The original story, for those of you who missed it last night

had plenty of exposure to COVID-positive patients, so that would be the reasonable explanation - I'm ready to believe it's simply coincidence she got sick right after the vaccine, at least until we have more data points linking the two.)

Yesterday she got her second shot. And boy howdy, what a difference.

She started puking at 7, and has puked all day. She hasn't kept anything down, not ginger ale, broth, or gatorade. She has terrible body aches and a headache. After hours of this, she's now lying in bed with a bright red face and a fever. We've seriously discussed the possibility of getting some IV fluids. I don't think that'll be necessary, but this is as sick as I've ever seen her.

I really like @brithume, who's a charter member of Team Reality, but this is the problem with the reporting on the mRNA vaccines. People in general are so eager for #Covid to end (and lockdown skeptics specifically not to be seen as "deniers"), they are ignoring obvious problems.

Believe me, I get it. I want the vaccines to work quickly and well and safely. I WANT TO GET BACK TO NORMAL. (Isn't that what everyone wants?) And if vaccines would give us a safe excuse to drop masks and lockdowns and open schools, fantastic...

But wishing doesn't make it so.

1/ A lot of people are jumping on the @cdcgov statement just 6% of US #Covid deaths list #Covid alone as the cause. But to use that figure to claim "COVID ONLY KILLED 9,000 AMERICANS" is wrong. Other causes include conditions like pneumonia, which can clearly be Covid-related...

2/ A better way to use the data may be to TAKE OUT causes clearly unrelated to [illegible]. I'd include Alzheimer's, sepsis, dementia, cancer, and unintentional injury. (Let's be conservative and leave off kidney failure, diabetes, obesity, and strokes.)

25 128 700

Alex Berenson @AlexBerenson · 29 ago 2020

3/ The other advantage of leaving off those conditions is that there is significant overlap in, say, diabetes and obesity (and the CDC reports the average COVID death certificate included 2.6 other conditions). That's less likely for the conditions I included...

Alex Berenson @AlexBerenson · 29 ago 2020

4/ So, okay, the five conditions on my list were on about 50,000 certificates (assuming no double counting). The accidental deaths and poisonings alone were 5,000.

Yes, hospitals in Houston are under strain, and some patients are being seen and cared for in one unit of the hospital rather than another (and preferable) unit. That sounds accurate. It also doesn't sound anything like what your story - much less your headline - said.

And if you want to compare our outcomes to New York and the other hard lockdown states, go ahead. We are proof that the RIGHT way to handle is this not to panic, not to disrupt society and children's lives, but to treat [illegible]-cov-2 as what it is - a manageable medical problem.

And btw, writers at the [illegible] and the rest of the media hysterics can scream about how we have to have another lockdown, but that's not happening down here, not now, not ever, so they may as well save their breath.

The kind of insane reporting that is driving the panic: Arizona didn't reduce its request for ventilators because the stockpile is "dwindling" (remember, California just sent back 500 ventilators!) - it reduced its request because IT WON'T NEED THEM.

GLENDALE, Ariz (AP) — With little hope of getting the 5,000 ventilators it requested from the dwindling national stockpile, Arizona has revised its request down to fewer than the 500 it expects to need soon to treat coronavirus patients, the state's health director said.

Most of the ventilators would be used to equip a Phoenix hospital that shut down last year but is being reopened as an acute care facility, Health Services Department Director Dr. Cara Christ said in an interview. About 50 would be sent to the Navajo Nation, where a severe Wondering what @cdcgov really thinks about masks? Their guidance on quarantining after exposure to someone with #covid explicitly states whether the infected OR exposed person wore masks doesn't matter.

My mask protects no one. So does yours. Thanks for clearing that up, CDC!

So in Massachusetts school desks only have to be three feet apart, not six.

I guess that means #SARSCoV2 is only half as dangerous in Massachusetts.

Or maybe parents there love their kids only half as much? Or twice? It's all so confusing.

The kind of insane reporting that is driving the panic: Arizona didn't reduce its request for ventilators because the stockpile is "dwindling" (remember, California just sent back 500 ventilators!) - it reduced its request because IT WON'T NEED THEM.

GLENDALE, Ariz (AP) — With little hope of getting the 5,000 ventilators it requested from the dwindling national stockpile, Arizona has revised its request down to fewer than the 500 it expects to need soon to treat coronavirus patients, the state's health director said.

Most of the ventilators would be used to equip a Phoenix hospital that shut down last year but is being reopened as an acute care facility, Health Services Department Director Dr. Cara Christ said in an interview. About 50 would be sent to the Navajo Nation, where a severe

If this is true, does that mean the virus actually has spread more than if we we were all allowed to be outside and among others? Seems as though bringing it into our own homes has actually done the inverse of what the lock-downs were

I guess that means #SARSCoV2 is only half as dangerous in Massachusetts.

Or maybe parents there love their kids only half as much? Or twice? It's all so confusing.

Yes, hospitals in Houston are under strain, and some patients are being seen and cared for in one unit of the hospital rather than another (and preferable) unit. That sounds accurate. It also doesn't sound anything like what your story - much less your headline - said.

From a summer school session in California: 200 students for six weeks, zero cases among any students or staff. It would be an anecdote except it matches practically all the data.

KEEP SCHOOLS CLOSED FOREVER! The little fools will figure it all out sooner or later.

Primary

Please keep this anonymous.

We just concluded a summer session in a County on California's watch list. 200 students for 6 weeks, State guidance allowed this until the governor's order on Friday.

Zero cases among students, faculty, or staff. We wore masks and spaced things out.

Closing schools is not scientific. It also harms students, very alarmingly our teachers found that the incoming remedial cohort is much further behind the remedial cohorts of previous years.

From a heartbroken and angry father in upstate New York: “The collateral damage done to these kids in the name of health is criminal.”

mail.google.com

Primary

Hi Alex,

My son before Covid was always a bit on the anxious side. Since March, his anxiety has turned into panic attacks. Our district has been completely online since March (Albany). He is nervous a lot and has trouble getting to sleep. Last night in particular it was really bad and spent a couple hours practically talking him off a roof. He's only 12. He doesn't see the point in anything, he can't see his friends. I have never seen him this upset, my heart broke for him and I am powerless to help. I am getting him help, but what he really needs is to be back on school. The collateral damage done to these kids in the name of health is

You can definitely publish this minus the names. I did notice a couple grammar errors—was definitely upset when I wrote it. But it also goes deeper. He is truly depressed. The happy go lucky friendly kid that he used to be is diminished. He needs to be in school, with his friends and not at half capacity. We tried putting him in my wife's school for this quarter, she teaches in a different district that is doing hybrid. Hybrid sucks. Half classes, kids are under literal surveillance and not allowed to congregate and goof around like kids do. He hates the masks because they put up barriers. Hybrid in this form is worse than all online school. He told me it feels like prison. He came up to me the other day and said it had been over 300 days since he saw the inside of his middle school. What could I say.

I feel powerless and I feel like I'm losing him in many

The kind of insane reporting that is driving the panic: Arizona didn't reduce its request for ventilators because the stockpile is "dwindling" (remember, California just sent back 500 ventilators!) - it reduced its request because IT WON'T NEED THEM.

GLENDALE, Ariz (AP) — With little hope of getting the 5,000 ventilators it requested from the dwindling national stockpile, Arizona has revised its request down to fewer than the 500 it expects to need soon to treat coronavirus patients, the state's health director said.

Most of the ventilators would be used to equip a Phoenix hospital that shut down last year but is being reopened as an acute care facility, Health Services Department Director Dr. Cara Christ said in an interview. About 50 would be sent to the Navajo Nation, where a severe

The kind of insane reporting that is driving the panic: Arizona didn't reduce its request for ventilators because the stockpile is "dwindling" (remember, California just sent back 500 ventilators!) - it reduced its request because IT WON'T NEED THEM.

GLENDALE, Ariz (AP) — With little hope of getting the 5,000 ventilators it requested from the dwindling national stockpile, Arizona has revised its request down to fewer than the 500 it expects to need soon to treat coronavirus patients, the state's health director said.

Most of the ventilators would be used to equip a Phoenix hospital that shut down last year but is being reopened as an acute care facility, Health Services Department Director Dr. Cara Christ said in an interview. About 50 would be sent to the Navajo Nation, where a severe

1/ The Ontario arbitration fight about masks is really stunning. The background: several Ontario hospitals wanted to make all nurses get flu vaccinations. Legally they couldn't. So they required the nurses who wouldn't get vaccinated to wear masks. The nurses filed a grievance...

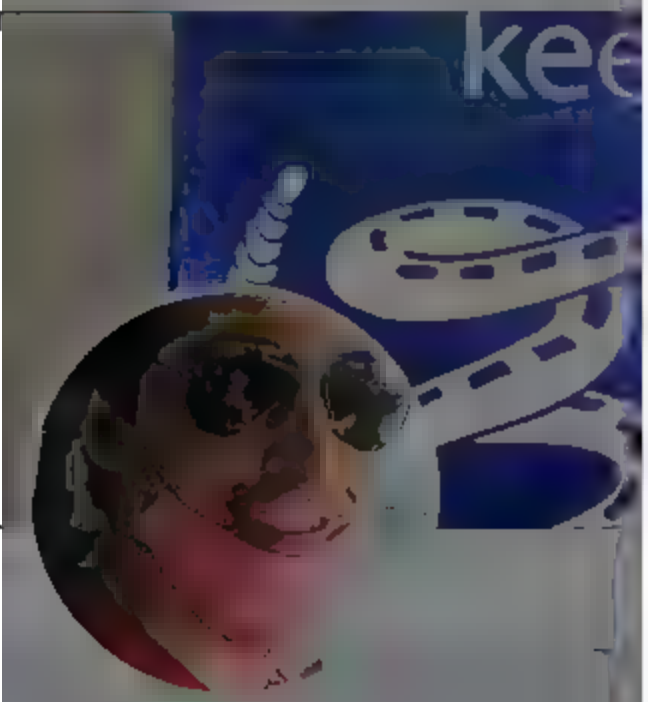
2/ saying that masks were useless and they should not be forced to wear them. Both sides took the arbitration very seriously. A long fight ensued. Both sides called experts and offered evidence. And in two decisions - in 2015 and 2018 - separate arbitrators ruled for the nurses.



28. In the result the hearing transcripts ran to more than 3500 pages. There were 249 exhibits several of which constituted substantial volumes of material in themselves. Among the exhibits were over 100 academic articles, reports, and commentaries from medical and scientific journals many containing complex statistical material designed to be understood by experts and professionals in the fields of their respective inquiries.

From the father of an 11-year-old girl in NYC who has begun having mask-related panic attacks: “We’re starting to look at homes in Florida to try to get out of NY as soon as possible.”

A city that destroys its children destroys itself.

Your Tweet tonight from that father about his 12-year old struck home.

Today we made a therapist appointment for our 11-year old. She has been dealing with panic attacks. She also hasn't been able to fall asleep at night, etc.

She goes to school in a NYC public school. And every day feels like the first day of school due to the sporadic nature of the schedule.

Today was her first day back to school since December 23 since her school had a mandatory 14-day closure after the Christmas break due to positive tests of students/staff during the Christmas break (not linked to the school at all).

adult mask we can find on her, but she feels claustrophobic, and combined with the fact she's had none of her friends in her cohort and the newness of school each time, she's having trouble dealing with it.

The next time she has the privilege of going to school is next Monday. We are trying our best, but these panic attacks are real. Her teacher has been great and assured us next time it happens she will take her in the hall and take her mask off to let her feel normal.

It's crazy. Hopefully the therapist helps. We have to do something to try to help and today was the last straw.

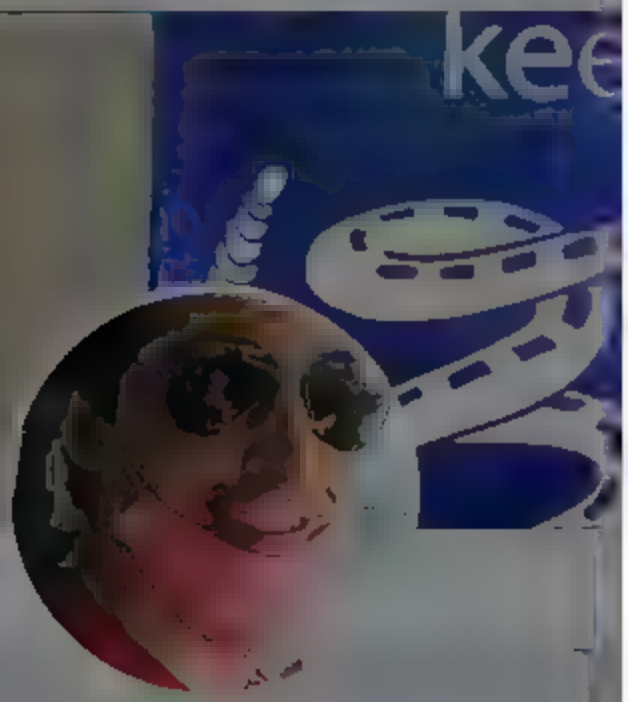
Uncle Joe has a plan to open schools!

Let's look at the details.

"K-8" (High school? Tough)

"A majority" (50.1%, less impressive than it seems since many red-state schools are open now)

"100 days" (Open by May, just in time to close)



"Safely open" (Your tax dollars at work)

> Other orders to be issued by Biden include creating a pandemic testing board focused solely on increasing test availability nationwide, with a focus on schools, as well as requiring the Education and HHS Departments to provide federal guidance on reopening, "with the goal of getting a majority of K-8 schools safely open in 100 days."

1/ A bad day for kids in NY. From the upstate mom of a 13-year-old: "I have watched her slowly decline into a state of panic."

(Eight screenshots, worth reading to the end, where she walks through her awful choices. Without wealth, there's no substitute for real public school.)

Hi Alex,

I wanted to share a bit of our story with you. I'm hoping to share with other parents our struggle as I am sure we are not alone. We need help, our children need help! Besides the elderly in the nursing homes, I can't think of a people group that is struggling more than our teens specifically. Covid lockdowns and protocols at school have been nothing but detrimental.

2/ "This has to stop, it's madness. Our children are suffering and there is no end in sight."

Primary

This morning, it was an in person school day. Once again my daughter was in full panic mode about going to school. Her friend hadn't text back so she wasn't sure if she would be there. She can't face school without her friend. Turns out her phone died and she was already at school. My daughter built up the courage to go, walked out the door, slipped on ice and fell. Then was crying and that induced a bloody nose. Back to square one with not wanting to go to school. Germs are everywhere, it feels like a prison, school is scary...

No, the news is much more worrying:

Israel didn't peak on the 17th. It set new records for cases and deaths yesterday.

Cases in Lebanon have fallen 30% since last week.

Hey high school seniors and parents! Want to be sure you can have in-person teaching and a normal college experience next fall? Try @uofsc! They've laid down the law to their faculty: "online programs... will be in addition to and not in place of our core academic experience."

UNIVERSITY OF

Office of the Provost

January 8, 2021

Dear Faculty Members,

The Fall of 2020 will always be a memorable one in many ways and I would like to thank you for doing starting in the Summer of 2021, courses to be offered online must be approved by Faculty Senate; the blanket exemption of needing approval will end. Also, for the Summer of 2021, deans will be able to determine what the distribution of courses taught online or face-to-face or otherwise. Because of this, faculty will not have complete freedom of choice in the modality of their teaching starting this summer and continuing forward.

The quantitative expectation for each unit will be shared by the Office of the Registrar in January in their message to the schedulers. It is strongly recommended that 100 level classes in the fall be offered face-to-face.

The University of South Carolina Columbia is a residential university and will continue to be so in the foreseeable future. While we expect to have more online academic programs, these will be

PREMATURE DELIVERY

COVID19 vaccine. Two days after (12/25/2020 in the afternoon), I noticed decreased mot on of the baby. The baby was found to not have a heartbeat in the early am on 12/26/2020 and I delivered a 2lb 7oz nonviable female fetus at 29 weeks gestation. I was 35 years old at the time of the fetal demise and the only pregnancy history for this pregnancy included a velamentous cord insertion that was being closely monitored by a high risk OB. My estimated due was March 12, 2021.

3/ Two, this is still almost all first dose and the side effects are far worse after the second dose. (And as the Israeli experience shows, there's not much point to one dose - it doesn't provide adequate protection.)

And finally this is still mostly Pfizer: Moderna is worse.

I've known David 30+ years. He is decent, honorable, mathematically aware, and very smart. And he seems to have lost his mind. I don't understand this story at all. The risk of a 1600-mile drive all by itself overwhelms any benefit of being vaccinated a couple of weeks early...

THIS IS HAPPENING. The biggest and supposedly most trusted newspapers in the world are secretly editing their archives to remove politically unpleasant material.

Even Orwell and Bradbury couldn't have imagined a world in which private journalists would be the censors.

Megyn Kelly

The future of Fox News began on Feb. 1, when Megyn Kelly popped up behind the anchor desk on a new two-hour show called America Live (1 p.m. ET). The program itself is not anything special, nor does it need to be. As a midday show, its sole purpose is to keep a stream of information—meaningless and otherwise—flowing at a decent pace. As a Fox News offering, it just needs to throw out some red-state red meat, U.S. commercial grade or

1/ You may hear a lot today about “cases” (positive tests) in Israel dropping over the weekend, and how this trend proves vaccines work.

But here’s what you WON’T hear.

A: Israel has had ~NO DECLINE in the rate of positive tests. It simply cut the number of tests it runs...

"Today is of the devil."

COVID. I listened to you on JRE and I felt like you were very reasonable but may have been exaggerating about the vaccine side effects. I was wrong.

I am not a COVID denier. My son, a college student athlete, had a mild case. His school required some extra tests to ensure he was healthy before returning to practice. He had to wait an extra couple weeks to do some follow up tests on his heart. All is well but there were some anxious moments. I was thankful for their caution.

I work for a health care delivery organization and the county was having trouble getting shots in arms so my number came up sooner than expected. It seemed reasonable if the shots would have

Primary

I got the second Pfizer shot yesterday. As a healthy 53 year old with no co-morbidities. I told myself that it would be smooth sailing. Again I was wrong. The side effects are evil. I am 24 hours out from the 2nd dose. I could barely lift my coffee cup this morning because my arm hurt like a mofo which is a small price to pay, but by 10am body aches and chills. Even my damn eyeballs hurt. I don't think I have a fever but I have not felt this shitty since I had the flu in 2015. I have not even had a sniffle since then. Today is of the devil.

Keep doing what you do, people need to weigh the risks and the benefits. I don't know whether I would have changed my mind but I

Asking hard questions of Donald Trump: good journalism. Asking hard questions of Uncle Joe: “turn(ing) the White House briefing room into a battlefield.”

Plus the White House has decided it has the right make reporters tell “the truth” (as the commissar sees it, anyway). Pravda!

MAGA media looks to turn White House briefing room into a battlefield

Some Trump-loving members of the press corps are eager to get access to the Biden White House.

“We expect reporters covering the White House to operate in good faith and tell their audience the truth, and this White House will do the same. We are moving forward with that mutual understanding,” said T.J. Ducklo, the deputy White House press secretary. “Organizations or individuals who traffic in conspiracy theories, propaganda and lies to spread disinformation will not be tolerated, and we’ll work with the WHCA to decide how to handle those instances moving forward.”

There were about 71,000 overdose deaths in the US in 2019. A 30-50% increase (and that is very likely where we are headed) would translate into 20,000-35,000 additional deaths, most in people under 50.

I don't think this will age well

"In week after 2nd Pfizer vaccine shot, only 20 of 128,000 Israelis get COVID-19"

That's 0.015%...second jab impt

In the past week, 0.57% of Israelis tested positive

I was skeptical, but I will be getting the jab

It's not a question of aging well. There's equipoise around the vaccines. That was never true of lockdowns or masks. On the vaccines, we know what we know at this moment. In a month we may be in a different place.

The article is hours old. Nationally, deaths in Israel are at all-time highs. Cases are very close. There is no evidence on a population level vaccinations have cut transmission, serious illness, or deaths. In fact the opposite.

Like I said, it's time to start asking questions.

I mean, if I'd written the story I would have asked a couple of dumb questions about vaccine-driven mutations and community transmission and possible antibody enhancement and probably gotten all confused. Lucky I didn't write it!

This is a nice thread about what we do and do not know about the new #SARSCoV2 variants, with only a little politics sneaking in at the end. (Though I'm not sure he's right about one-dose protection - the Israeli experience sure suggests otherwise - see #31.)

> Florian Krammer @florian_krammer
> 1) So, this morning I promised a little tweetorial about variants and here we go. This will be from a vaccine/antibody point of view only, I won't comment on how infectious they are or if they are more pathogenic (I'll leave that to Boris Johnson).

1/ Turns out even this guarded optimism was wrong. Israel updated its data from the 24th: 180 serious cases, the fourth-highest recorded, and 10% positive tests.

I realize the Israeli government claims HMO data shows very low rates of infection a week after the second dose...

1/ So in this (pro-vaccine) interview on Jan. 19, a @Baylor ob/gyn professor says the @cdcgov told him "several thousand" pregnant women have received the vaccine.

That datapoint actually isn't comforting at all in the context of the miscarriage reports.

2/ Given the rate of vaccinations, if "several thousand" is 5,000, it implies that only 1,000-2,000 had received the vaccinations as of earlier in the month - when the CDC had already received at least TWO reports of miscarriage of late-term fetuses, which are very rare events.

Yeah, I do. They are mostly health-care workers, so they are going to be healthier than the general population. And the women who miscarried were healthy.

Look, the regulators failed when they didn't make the companies each enroll 5,000+ people over 75, including thousands over 80. Then we would have the data we need and we could at least vaccinate people at high risk confidently (or not).

But no one seems to care.

WAAAARP SPEED.

Alex Berenson challenge: consider whether it is time to frame the vaccine issue in wider terms. Do we need to halt, reframe, reconfigure, interrogate those who will say that "there is no reason to think it would effect anyone differently" when we are dealing with EXPERIMENTS?

Fantastic! We can vaccinate every pregnant woman an extra 50 times!

Who will want these extra doses? 300MM people would be every American INCLUDING ALL KIDS OVER 6. Plus the evidence against vaccinating people who have already recovered is growing. And other vaccines are coming.

No. A 22-week-miscarriage or 28-week-stillbirth is stunningly rare. The one-week incidence is under 1 in 1,000 pregnancies, closer to 1 in 10,000 for fetuses that have not had abnormalities. And these both began very shortly - under two days - after dosing.

Nearly all the risk occurs at the very end of pregnancy (especially in pregnancies that go past 40 weeks), not in the earlier weeks of the third trimester.

The @stanford antibody testing is out - it estimates ~3% of people in Santa Clara County (CA) have been infected and recovered, 50-plus times the estimate of confirmed active cases. More evidence #SARSCoV2 is far more widespread and thus less dangerous than expected.

Serious question: How bad does the situation have to get in Israel - where 90% of the population over 70 has been vaccinated and 60% has received both doses - before ANYONE in the media starts asking about what is happening?

Remember: Israel is under a HARD lockdown, too. They've even closed their main airport, which effectively ends international travel. (If I lived there I'd have a fraction of a doubt at this point whether they had closed it to keep people OUT or IN, but hey, that's just me.)

The point is: We don't know. Maybe the answer is merely the vaccines haven't worked fast enough. That theory is less plausible with each passing day, but it is still possible.

BUT WE NEED TO FIND OUT. PREFERABLY BEFORE OTHER COUNTRIES VACCINATE HUGE SWATHS OF THEIR POPULATIONS.

So is the vacvine not working? Or is just that seasonality kicked in? Or is the vaccine causing this? Correlation or causation?

Meanwhile, Israel essentially stopped vaccinating people yesterday. Boom. Just stopped, per the government website. 10,000 doses, down from 200,000+ the day before. I don't know if that's a one-day blip, a data hiccup, or something else. Don't think it's a supply issue, though.

BTW: Before people start yelling at me: when I say, "They produce antibodies to the spike protein," I mean, "They cause cells to produce the spike protein and thus lead the immune system to respond by creating antibodies."

And anyone who tells you anything else is guessing. I don't want to say lying, so I'll say guessing.

But right now the Israeli experience provides ZERO evidence that the vaccines are helpful on a population-wide basis. Maybe that will change soon. But hope is not data.

Ftr, the difference in rate of severe illness between placebo and vaccine group for Moderna was 30 compared to 1.

Q: How well does Moderna COVID-19 Vaccine prevent COVID-19?

A: The data to support the EUA include an analysis of 28,207 participants in the ongoing randomized, placebo-controlled U.S. study who did not have evidence of SARS-CoV-2 infection prior to the first dose of vaccine. Among these participants, 14,134 received the vaccine and 14,073 received placebo. The vaccine was 94.1% effective in preventing COVID-19 disease among these clinical trial participants with 11 cases of COVID-19 in the vaccine group and 185 cases in the placebo group. At the time of the analysis of these 196 COVID-19 cases, 0 in the vaccine group and 30 in the placebo group were classified as severe. One severe case in the vaccine group was identified after the analysis (and not included among the 196 cases) and was awaiting confirmation at the time the FDA review was conducted.

Essentially all of those cases were "severe" because of oxygen saturation below 95%. The definition is a joke.

DELETED this Tweet because as one responder suggested, the data simply had not yet been updated. The updated data shows more than 100,000 vaccinations yesterday (and likely at least one more update coming). My error.

> Meanwhile, Israel essentially stopped vaccinating people yesterday. Boom. Just stopped, per the government website. 10,000 doses, down from 200,000+ the day before. I don't know if that's a one-day blip, a data hiccup, or something else. Don't think it's a supply issue, though.

I didn't read it. But I had discussions about the topic. I think you always have to keep quantities in mind. And spike quantities are small in vaccines. And in many cases they are membrane anchored and can't just float around.

A scientist at a biotechnology company thinks the vaccines may increase miscarriage risk by stimulating interferon production.

Make sure to read the last screenshot about potential long-term autoimmune effects, too. “At this point only time will tell.” Great!

i have been following you on twitter and have seen your recent posts regarding miscarriages post vaccination. I have a hypothesis that may explain the connection between the two, but this of course would need to be tested to confirm.

In pregnancy, the immune system is tightly regulated to protect the mother and the developing child. The mother's immune system must be suppressed just enough to keep it from attacking the fetus, but active enough to protect the fetus from different pathogens. The fetal stem cells also produce immune responses to keep it protected from viral and bacterial pathogens. Additionally, the immune system plays a role in the development and health of the placenta. A decent review paper on the role of the immune

Attention citizens! Your Dept. Of Pandemia offers this updated Q&A on the vaccines.

Q: I've heard some people have died after being vaccinated.
A: We don't hear a question.
Q: Should I be worried?
A: No. Those deaths are unrelated.
Q: How do you know?
A: We just do.

I fear your focus is on the wrong thing. Israel is at 50 percent vaccinated and their numbers show no signs of improving.

I wanted to invite you to speak at CPAC 2021, taking place Feb. 25-28 at the Hyatt Regency in Orlando, Florida. Please see the invitation below for more information.

If you have any questions please reach out to Carin [redacted]

We hope you can participate!

From a reader. One can argue about the number of non-Covid excess deaths, but he is right - the difference between using a 2% increase in deaths in 2020 as a baseline and a 1.5% decrease makes a huge change to the baseline relative to the number of reported #Covid deaths...

show an interesting thing with their baseline excess deaths. In short they decided that after increasing expected deaths by 2% from 17-18 and 18-19, they decided to decrease it for 19-20 by 1.61% This has a very material impact on excess death numbers. I can send you the excel research (need to do a hard check as I manually imputed the weekly data but it appears to be good based on my cursory review).

Bottom line when looking at excess deaths we are likey talking about 168k dead from Covid not 400k they keep peddling. Baking in that extra 115k deaths is a sneaky thing. I can point to precisely the 2 week period they started messing with this!

Here is a summary shot. If you use it could you hat tip #numbercruncher2012.

This is excellent news if true. If all these positive results are correct, the national Israeli numbers should roll very soon. We should all hope for that.

Even @nytimes is admitting the truth now. A school year late, but better than never.

C.D.C. study in rural Wisconsin shows little in-school transmission.

C.D.C. showed," Mr. Klain said, "was that 17 schools that got a sizable grant from a private foundation to put in the kinds of safety measures they needed — students in very small pods, classes of about 11 or 12, distanced, in a rural area — they could go to school safely."

Asked by the CNN anchor, Erin Burnett, why teachers' unions were ignoring the scientific evidence in opposing reopening, Mr. Klain disagreed.

"I think what you're seeing is schools that haven't made the investments to keep the students safe," he said.

This is a bad-faith question but I'll answer it anyway:

Likely about 1/2 are "real" #[illegible] deaths, i.e. people who were not on their deathbeds before #[illegible] (though they were mostly pretty unwell). So somewhat worse than two bad flu seasons (we are now in season two of Covid)...

Most of the rest are true with-not-from deaths, and a minority are completely misclassified (the mythical gunshot wound with a positive #SARSCoV2 test, only it's not mythical at all).

Thoughtful comments from an OB/GYN on the miscarriage issue here. I find it notable that week 20-35 miscarriages are so rare in her practice that she can accurately date the last one that a patient of hers had...

BCM alumna here again... and an OB/GYN. Disclaimer that I am just clinical, not involved in research. The VAERS reports you posted describe the fetal loss via different mechanisms— the difference between cramping, bleeding, going into labor and delivering a previable 22 week fetus, and feeling decreased fetal movement at 29 weeks and finding no fetal heartbeat without any signs of labor. I'm not sure a single instigator from the vaccine would cause fetal loss like this in 2 different ways.

Also, if adverse pregnancy effects are from the mRNA, I'm sure there's tons of mRNA floating around with an active COVID infection, so shouldn't we see pregnancy losses via the same mechanism as the vaccine? Perhaps an immunologist could explain

Look, these numbers are so bad and getting so much worse so quickly that at some point the increases will have to slow down. Don't mistake that for improvement; many cities have now undone 20 years of falling crime and are back to late 1990s levels. (A few are worse.)

Meantime, if you liked what woke prosecutors did for murder in 2020, you're gonna love what you see in 2021:

Chicago: up 43%
LA: 136% (yes)
NYC: 42%
Oakland: 1100% (12 to 1)
Philly: 17%

If only we could discourage cops even more, end all cash bail, and fully legalize drugs!

From @nytimes editor Dean Baquet: “When I first heard one of my white reporters used a super-racist word, I was mad. Then I realized - I know this guy! He’s not some teenager in Virginia. He’s a good reporter too. Hell, we don’t even have to tell anyone about this! So we didn’t.”

Colleagues

By now you've read the account of a trip that Donald McNeil made with a group of students in context of discussing an incident that involved racist language.

When I first heard the story, I was outraged and expected I would fire him. I authorized an inve judgment, but that it did not appear to me that his intentions were hateful or malicious. I believ was formally disciplined. No one will be given a pass.

This is a moment when newsrooms across the country — including ours — must fully state the newsroom and a report that lights it.

There is a painful and overdue reckoning underway as to whether we have fully lived up to the newsrooms and experienced their insensitivities. I welcome it. Some people think we have bee treatment has to be the foundation of the diverse and equitable newsroom we are building.

I will be in touch, virtually, and welcome hearing from you all in the days ahead.

Israeli here. Those that completed their vaccination are highly unlikely to get sick , never mind hospitalised. Only five fully vaccinated Israelis ended up with severe disease. I think that hospitalisation will drop in a few weeks.

it works out as well than the trials, maybe substantially as well. (that is what drug development experience in general suggests).

1 & essentially realistic because it does not protect the vulnerable population (as data suggest about the flu vaccine, though the problem would be worse here because the risk is so highly age-related, a vaccine that didn't help vulnerable people over 65 would be really useless)

Eran: These charts prove the opposite of the point you want to make. They show minor changes in relative risk by age after vaccinations began nationally - but huge increases in absolute risk for all ages.

That could cost as much as $490,000 if all 650 employees get the shot. The payment is an incentive. County Executive Lamont McClure said employees cannot be required to get the shots.

"Lives and livelihoods will be saved by a robust vaccination program," McClure said.

He said the county will use federal CARES Act money to pay the incentive. The county received $27.6 million from the federal government for pandemic relief. It kept some and distributed the rest to nonprofit groups, small businesses, schools and local

This press release is even more full of it than the others. What these companies are doing given the stakes is shocking.

1) NO detailed discussion of side effects.
2) NO p-values.
3) Not even a numerical breakdown of cases in the placebo or vaccine arms.

Yes, the weekly @cdcgov vaccine adverse events update is out. I won't even bother with the flu vaccine comparison, it's terrible again. One point: reports of serious events are rising faster than less serious. I suspect many people aren't even bothering to mention nausea, etc...

Hey, remember when these three great men said they'd get vaccinated live on camera to convince the proles the shot was a good idea?

I guess that's still being scheduled? They're super-busy, I know.

I am not capable of judging the technical details of this paper arguing strongly that #sarscov2 was lab-created, including the crucial points about the possible adenovirus vector in the first few pages - perhaps @Ayjchan or other experts can weigh in.

2/ Does this not imply that over a two- or at most three-day period 254 people who'd were at least a week out tested positive (the denominator would be about 600,000) - so between 80 and 130 positive tests in that group a day, or roughly 1200 to 2000 on a population-level basis?

2/ Its old advice: because of the risks, the vaccine shouldn't be given to pregnant women unless they were "health workers" or had "comorbidities placing them in a high-risk group." Now it says it doesn't know the risks, so women in those groups "may be vaccinated." Guess what?

to assess vaccine safety in pregnancy.

Nevertheless, based on what we know about this kind of vaccine, we don't have any specific reason to believe there will be specific risks that would outweigh the benefits of vaccination for pregnant women.

For this reason, those pregnant women at high risk of exposure to SARS-CoV-2 (e.g. health workers) or who have comorbidities which add to their risk of severe disease, may be vaccinated in consultation with their health care provider.

3/ On a per-vaccination basis, that's 40x the reported rate of the flu vaccine per-dose. Butthe real gap is much bigger, bc the second #Covid dose is much worse, and this is nearly all first doses.

TL: DR. The US vaccine injury reporting system shows not just older people but many people under 50 have health crises after #Covid vaccinations.

This shouldn't be a surprise. It's what the clinical trials showed. Now that we are into second doses, the problem may get far worse.

Alex Berenson @AlexBerenson
2/ But okay. What about younger people? I looked at people under 50 who were hospitalized within three days of getting the shot.

No broken legs a month later here - the case for causality is…

Yep, and they showed 20%+ levels of Grade 3/4 adverse events in the (Moderna) vaccine arm. In a relatively young and healthy population.

Which couldn't have anything to do with what we're seeing now, right?

The fact is that unless Israeli cases and hospitalizations crash within days, the decline will simply put the country on the path that countries with far fewer vaccinations (and softer lockdowns) have followed. Don't expect the media to tell you this, though.

> 50% effective in the first 14 days. Also pfizer reported 52% between shot 1 and shot 2. which includes 10-14 out of 21 days with no protection. it's likely that if they reported after 14 days from shot 1 that they would also have a higher vaccine efficiency. (but of course, why would they? they want to sell twice as many doses!!)
> in any case, it's more than abundantly clear that 14 days after the 1st shot there is the same immunity as after the second shot. maybe they'll argue that it's not as long lasting and that the immune system needs to be stimulated more for long term immunity since

"Historic decimation of Black Communities across America"

Wow.

Remind me of the Covid-19 death rate?

This may be the most desperate and pathetic effort to stampede people into taking the mRNA vaccines yet.

Screenshot this tweet, please. It will not age well.

Lockdowns aren't.
School closures aren't.
Travel bans aren't.
The early Israeli data suggest vaccines won't be either. (Just as they aren't for the flu.)

A year in, the choice is ever clearer:

Live with the ro, or destroy ourselves trying to stop it.

A scientist at a biotechnology company thinks the vaccines may increase miscarriage risk by stimulating interferon production.

Make sure to read the last screenshot about potential long-term autoimmune effects, too. "At this point only time will tell." Great!

I have been following you on twitter and have seen your recent posts regarding miscarriages post vaccination. I have a hypothesis that may explain the connection between the two, but this of course would need to be tested to confirm.

In pregnancy, the immune system is tightly regulated to protect the mother and the developing child. The mother's immune system must be suppressed just enough to keep it from attacking the fetus, but active enough to protect the fetus from different pathogens. The fetal stem cells also produce immune responses to keep it protected from viral and bacterial pathogens. Additionally, the immune system plays a role in the development and health of the placenta. A decent review paper on the role of the immune

Two months ago, the vaccine story was: YAY! THEY SAVED US.

Last month, it was: The side effects are totally overstated, you might get a sore arm.

Now it's: Forget all the reports, they're not actually killing anyone!

That's not moving the goalposts. It's nuking the stadium.

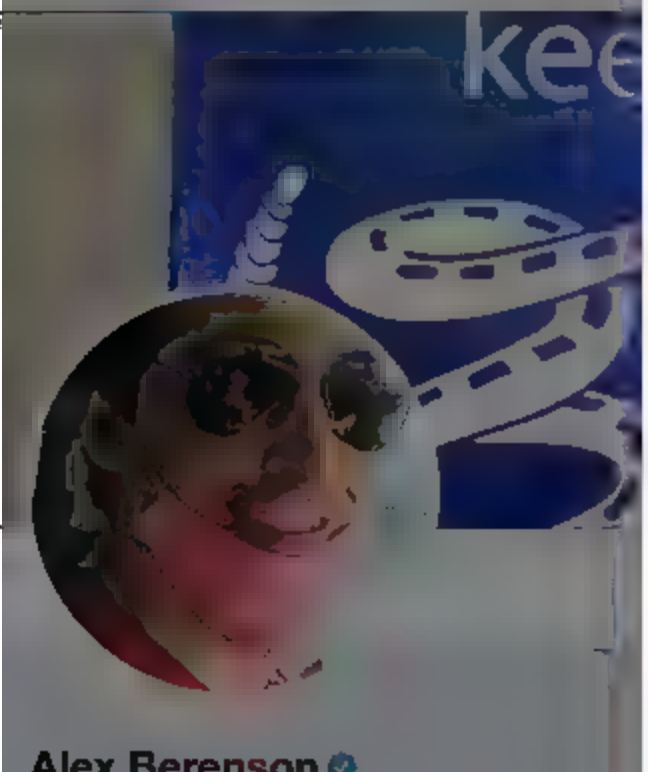
A healthy 19-year-old immediately has a racing heart and shortness of breath after his second Pfizer vaccine dose. Tests confirm myocarditis, a heart inflammation. He's in the ICU.



"It still has not been confirmed (the vaccine caused this)."

My question:

What exactly is the standard of proof for post-vaccination adverse events? Does the Oracle of Delphi have to say the vaccine is responsible? Must Jesus convene a fact-finding committee?

Because the normal rules - plausibility, temporality, repeated events - do not seem to apply.

This seems highly likely given the volume of messages and Weaver's lack of effort to hide them. The pop psychologist would say he hoped to be caught.

Tough to square with the denials coming out of the Lincoln Project grandees.

5/ It's also odd that they excluded the under-60s in this report - I wish they had reported them separately.

TL:DR - The Israeli data already makes clear the mRNA vaccines are not going to get us close to zero infections or deaths. That was a false hope. WE ARE GOING TO HAVE TO LIVE WITH THIS.

> Alex Berenson @AlexBerenson
> 1/ Israel has updated its post-vaccine infection data again and it now appears clear the Pfizer vaccine isn't offering close to the 95% protection that the clinical trials claimed. They now report 531 infections one week post second dose in the over-60 cohort (740,000 people)...

Yes, I still think you are. My mom is 76 and I encouraged her to do so. The side effects tend to decrease with age while risk skyrockets. You might wait for the full JNJ dataset but their vaccine appears less effective based on their press release.

Lotta hardcore Team Apocalypse members still out there. Or I guess I should say in there.

The replies are something else.

Can't imagine being this afraid for so long. I am not being sarcastic, I feel awful for these folks.

1/ You may hear a lot today about “cases” (positive tests) in Israel dropping over the weekend, and how this trend proves vaccines work.

But here’s what you WON’T hear.

A: Israel has had ~NO DECLINE in the rate of positive tests. It simply cut the number of tests it runs...

Interested in the profile of the typical hardcore Team Apocalypse member at this point.

My guess: female, usually single, nearly always childless, mostly hard left, at least a BA, often with anxiety/depression and/or fibro.

Age is irrelevant as perceived risk is what counts.

Yep, Israel's vaccine campaign looks to be coming to an abrupt end slowing, with clinics struggling to bring people in

Some HMOs now offering inoculations to all to avoid wasting vials; one said to throw out 1,000 doses; lockdown may be extended again; unemployment rises to 16.7% finding it increasingly difficult to get people to come to be vaccinated, and at least one provider was forced to throw away expired doses, according to Monday reports.

The Clalit health provider discarded around 1,000 expired doses in recent days, after not enough people came in to receive the shots, Channel 12 reported. The Pfizer vaccine being used in Israel expires quickly after being removed from deep freeze.

days sent out messages to all clients in various areas with excess doses to come in to be vaccinated — including people outside the Health Ministry-approved age groups (currently over 35s and ages 16-18).

The Health Ministry said Monday evening that 87,000 people had been vaccinated since midnight, down from a daily rate of around 150,000 a few weeks ago.

That in a relatively healthy population the vaccines reduce mild or moderate #Covid infections.

And that they cause a tremendous number of serious short-term side effects.

That's what they prove and that's ALL they prove. Everything else is guessing.

Bad news from Israel today: both serious cases (green) and overall positive tests (blue) spiked again. (The grey lines are incomplete data.) 45 days from the start of mass vaccinations; nearly the entire elderly population is vaccinated.

VACCINE ADVOCATES NEED TO EXPLAIN THIS.

2/ Okay, here's what is really happening in Israel. Look how quickly the orange and blue lines fell in the charts on the LEFT. Those were serious cases after the last lockdown - the PRE-vaccine lockdown.

Now look at the chart on the right. That's the trend in THIS lockdown...

3/ Notice that both the blue (older people) and orange (younger) line decline far more slowly this time (the graphs are the same in both tweets).

In other words, hospitalizations are staying higher for EVERYONE after mass vaccinations. Not sure how that suggests vaccines work.

From a 35-year-old first responder who received both @moderna_tx doses: "Would I do this again? The answer is absolutely not."

Primary

I received the second Moderna shot a week ago today, so I figured I'd give you an update. I am not pro or anti vaccine. Like I said previously, I got it because I feared catching it at work and not knowing, then giving it to my parents [redacted] they will not be able to get any vaccination until most likely spring. Totally ridiculous, but that was my reasoning. After the first shot I had minimal side effects. About a week before the second dose I felt like I had a wicked head cold, or at least that is what I thought until speaking with another person I work with that had the exact same symptoms at approximately the same time before his second dose. The head cold feeling went away just as fast as it came on. At certain points I became briefly nauseous, and felt like I was going to have an intestinal problem. I felt like this for about 36 hours. At about 48hrs I developed a strange cough and became out of breath just going up the stairs. After this episode everything seemed to go away. A number of people I work with had similar symptoms. One person had a fever, chills and stomach ache until about the 48hr mark and another said he had swollen glands as if he had a bad cold.

Would I do this again if it becomes a seasonal recommendation? The answer is absolutely not. Would I recommend it for people 60 and older? I guess it just depends on their tolerance for the side effects. I know a handful of people that actually got Covid from work and from family. One that is about

Hi Mr. Berenson,

I'm a senior reporter at Vice News working on a story with a colleague about the ways VAERS data is misleadingly used. I am curious about a couple of times you've highlighted VAERS data on your Twitter account.

- In one instance, you seem to be suggesting that the

- You also suggest that a miscarriage at 28 weeks is rare. Where'd you get that from? The CDC says otherwise: https://www.cdc.gov/ncbddd/stillbirth/facts.html

- You have another tweet that seems to suggest the Moderna vaccine may have caused vaccine trial participants to die by suicide. Was it your intention to suggest that? You also suggest you have inside information that that is the case; what did you mean?

- Have you ever clarified for your followers that VAERS data is a spontaneous and passive reporting system, and is not, in itself, a way to prove a vaccine caused any specific adverse effect? Clinicians and researchers use it very differently than you seem to.

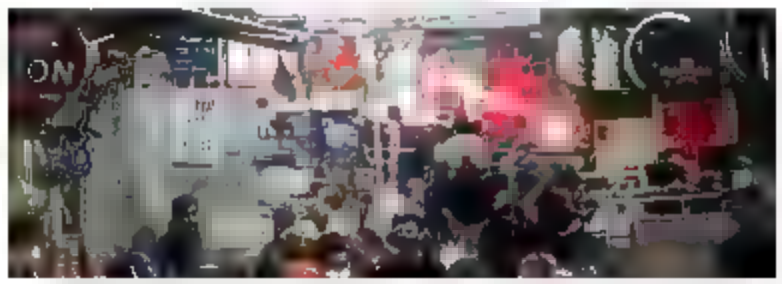
Israeli epidemiologists are now taking about forcing #Covid vaccines on children too.

Because the vaccine is working so well that cases seem to be RISING again, see?

THIS IS MADNESS.



And I'll say it now: efforts to make kids take mRNA vaccines will put people in the streets.

One other question - the table reports 3 deaths post-one-week after the second dose. So three people who were not diagnosed until at least a week after the second dose have already died, and another 24 are in serious/critical condition? That seems like very rapid deterioration.

A) A writer @nytimes just proposed a governmental "reality czar." Yay Orwell!

B) But maybe we need it? I am very disturbed - 60 percent of Americans believe the baseless theory #SARSCoV2 existed in the wild before it jumped to humans and is not the product of Chinese lab work.

NYTimes suggests the Biden administration needs to appoint a "reality czar" to deal with misinformation and extremism.

So proud that @vicenews has explained the value of the vaccine adverse event reporting system. VAERS "helped demonstrate that a previous rotavirus vaccine... was causing intestinal blockages... Rotashield was taken off the market in 1999."

It falls to @DailyMail to point out the truth: #Covid epidemics in the US and worldwide are crashing. US infections have fallen almost half in three weeks.

Guess what country HASN'T had this good news? Yep, Israel, the one that's vaccinated more people per-capita than any other.

Why ARE COVID cases plummeting? New infections have fallen 44% in the US and 30% globally in the past 3 weeks and experts say vaccine is NOT the main driver because only 8% of Americans and 13% people worldwide have received their first dose

I cannot confirm “Covid tongue.” (Perhaps others can?) However, I can confirm it is nearly impossible to search for vaccine adverse events on Google or Facebook.

> Not for attribution -- on COVID tongue and the vaccine.

My wife got the vaccine 18 days ago and now her tongue is burning and covered with tiny sores, something that others are calling "COVID tongue." As adverse reactions go, it's not too bad.The real problem is that we can't use the search engines to research the condition because they all serve up happy talk about how the vaccines are perfectly safe.

SHOCKING! SHOCKING, I say. Why, videos like this explain why Florida has fewer #Covid deaths than the US average and far fewer than states with tough mask rules like NY-

Hold on there, Shep! You said fewer. You meant more, right?

Let's get back to this SHOCKING video.

The News with Shepard Smith @thenewsonenbc
WATCH: This shocking video from @SamBrockNBC shows a market in Naples, FL where many customers and employees are not wearing face masks....

There's no way to spin the Covid data coming out of Israel anymore. It is terrible, and terrible for vaccine advocates. 90% of people over 70 are vaccinated. Most received both doses at least a week ago. But community spread has not fallen, and serious cases are RISING again...

In any normal world this set of facts would lead to serious reconsideration of the Emergency Use Authorization. But we don't live in a normal world, so people are voting with their arms. New vaccinations have plunged even though every Israeli is now eligible.

An email from a warehouse worker who is growing desperate at the creeping health dictatorship. "It's crushing me seeing how few people want to say no..."

I hope this is the right email.
I've checked your twitter regularly to keep up with events and I appreciate your sharing others' stories.
My story isn't spectacular on the surface but it's eating me up inside the more rules and restrictions are called for. Back when it was 15 days I was having serious anxiety about the virus itself. A few weeks and it shifted to how much was disrupted and how willingly people went along with it.
My parents and I all had the virus in December. My 77 year old father had a cough for about 5 days but was no worse for ware. My mom was very tired but we all got through.
I work in a warehouse and rarely spend time close to people for much time. Work has been a huge struggle lately. It started with mandatory temp checks and masks but like most I thought it would want regular testing. I don't know how to tell people that the more we tolerate the more we keep losing and I'm terrified what a year from now will look like if no one starts objecting.
I've shot gunned job applications hoping to find someplace less strict but haven't even heard back from grocery stores. This is probably my last week at this job though, because I can't sign that test waiver knowing they can just turn restrictions on and off on a whim.
It's crushing me seeing how few people want to say no and I don't see a way out of this unless more people do. Clearly the virus isn't leaving but what restrictions will they keep if they can get away with it? This is no way to live.

Thanks.

Imma help @cdcdirector out with this question about whether the vaccines were or are being studied in pregnant women.

The answer is NO. N-to-the-O.

@CDCDirector

Follow up studies in pregnant women are planned & #COVID19 vaccine manufacturers are monitoring women in the clinical trials who became pregnant. #mRNA vaccines work & are unlikely to pose a specific risk for pregnant women.

Not defending berenson or saying vaccine isn't working, but the vaccine efficacy has a 1-2 week lag after the first dose. The lack of a swift decline in cases is a bit unexpected given the trials (Israel's timing/rate of decline has basically matched everywhere else)

Correct. Also, severe illness - defined by hospitalization - usually is 12-14 days post-exposure, not 3-4 weeks. HUGE difference for these purposes.

1) Best case: the vaccines are effective, but much less than the trials reported (likely because the wrong people were enrolled).

2) Middle case: the vaccines are completely ineffective in the older, sicker people at real risk.

3) Worst case: the vaccines are actively harmful.

5/ If the mRNA vaccines (or other vaccines) work, great. But rooting for them CANNOT BLIND US TO WHAT IS REALLY HAPPENING. And if public health authorities are actively discouraging the media from reporting side effects (as they seem to be), the dangers rise exponentially.

More #Covid vaccine benefits! Radiologists can brush up on their cancer screening skills.

16% (!) of women have enlarged lymph nodes.

"With other vaccines, occasionally we will see swollen lymph nodes, but it was a surprise how many we've been seeing."

Don't worry, though, a treatment that causes a massive lymphatic overresponse in healthy people for weeks cannot possibly have long-term side effects. After all, we have MONTHS of safety data on these vaccines. Months, I say!

Nothing to see here, move along.

Also, blowing up the placebo arms from the clinical trials (because the vaccines are so awesome that withholding them from the placebo recipients would be unethical, see? Really, that's the logic) is going to make long-term safety data even easier to get!

Had JNJ EVER disclosed actual figures from its trial? 1 #Covid hospitalization vs. 0 is technically 100% effective (don't laugh, that actually happened in the Novavax trial, 15,000 subjects, one hospitalization).

Presenting the data this way is the definition of misinformation.

From Ireland, where the lockdowns have been strict and Team Reality is playing defense.

"I'm irritable, lethargic, unmotivated, unstimulated, self-loathing, and isolated. I've been suicidal at times..."

Some people won't get through much more of this. I hope he isn't one.

Absolutely love your steely determination to speak the truth. It's absolutely scandalous the way a virus has been hijacked and utilised as a political tool of the elite.

I'm in Ireland and we're in "lockdown 3.0" since 31st December. To say January was a long month was an understatement. I'm furloughed from work in retail but I'd rather be able to work, even if it was for less pay as Irish people have been getting €350/week.

I'm irritable, lethargic, unmotivated, unstimulated, self-loathing and isolated. I've been suicidal at times this month and people and felt like the walls are closing in on me. I'm an extrovert and really need just a night out with friends to reset. I'm trying to get during a period of political uncertainty. However it's hit a dead wall as the media have doubled down on entrenching people in the view that it's right, proper and virtuous to stop living a life. The Irish state and it's media organs have resorted to demonising visitors returning to Dublin airport on national news, castigating and chastising them for wanting to live. It's absolutely dispicable and now the narrative is shifting to "zero Covid" as ideal policy persuant.

I can't emphasize enough how critical thinking and science is being upended for political and economic gain. I fear/hope that mass civil disobedience is the only way that people will rise up and say enough is enough. Unfortunately us Irish people aren't the best at protesting as we too easily accept authority.

Also - when would you expect serious cases and overall positive tests to decline materially if your estimates of effectiveness are broadly correct? Are you surprised they haven't already?

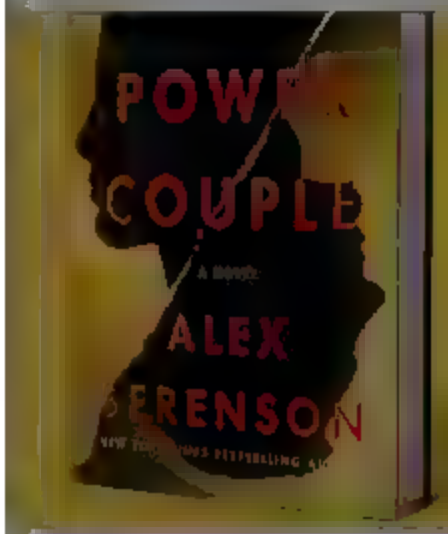
You can find them yourself on the Israeli government's website. If you think they show vaccines work Yahweh bless you.



Subgroup analysis under those circumstances is a joke, with BioNTech stock as the punchline.

1/ So @MHRAgovuk has released its first report on vaccine side effects. No surprise, nothing to see here! 143 deaths and 23,000 adverse reports notwithstanding.

The UK report has NO specific data on who died or was hospitalized and no case reports. Still a little truth snuck in.

1/ So [redacted] has released its first report on vaccine side effects. No surprise, nothing to see here! 143 deaths and 23,000 adverse reports notwithstanding.

The UK report has NO specific data on who died or was hospitalized and no case reports. Still a little truth snuck in.

2/ First, the AstraZeneca vaccine looks no safer than the Pfizer shot - overall adverse event reports and death reports are higher per-dose for AZN.

Second, the ONLY fact MHRA offers about deaths is that "the majority... were in elderly people or people with underlying illness."

Elsewhere in the report, MHRA uses "vast majority" - so "majority" in the death context is not an accident...

It's not about hope.

It's not about taking a position and digging in no matter what the facts say. (If the vaccine works, great.)

It's not about overpromising.

It's not about an easy answer that turns out to be a fantasy.

IT'S ABOUT REALITY.

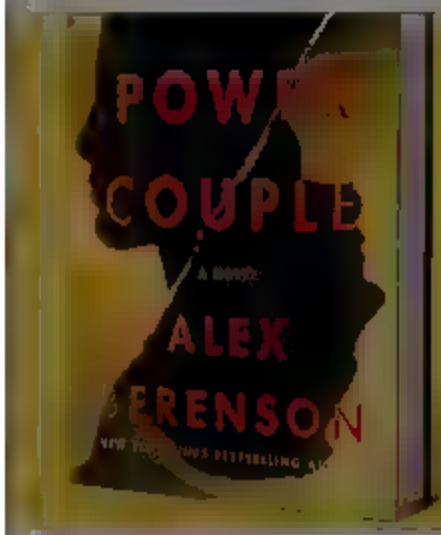
From a reader.

I can think of one big difference: the election's over.

The teachers' unions haven't gotten the memo, though.

21 minutes ago Details



Serious question: What is different between now-- or let's just say a few weeks ago, before the recent downturn in positive tests/hospitalizations--and May, June, July of last year, when you were advocating for the opening of schools as the #1 step that states and cities needed to take.

Not anything we didn't know data wise. We knew children didn't get seriously ill from Covid, and it was pretty certain they weren't vectors of transmission.

But it appears we've reached a tipping point where parents have decided they just aren't going to take this shit anymore. And the media can only stand athwart reality for so long, or more precisely, that can't completely disguise reality, despite their best

1/ Looks like @cdcgov has closed VAERS to non-serious reports for Covid vaccines. Either that or healthcare workers are being very strongly discouraged from making them.

They've also failed to update the data in the query engine.

The way we live now.

I'd feel worse for Donald McNeil Jr. if he hadn't used his giant megaphone to spend the last year spreading fear. He wasn't as bad as buffoons like Chris Cuomo but that actually made him worse - his Times patina meant he was taken far more seriously...

I wish @BallouxFrancois had not walked this back. #ZeroCovid is a remarkably dangerous idea.

Facing New Outbreaks, China Places Over 22 Million on Lockdown

By Steven Lee Myers

Published Jan. 13, 2021 Updated Jan. 15, 2021

The country is experiencing its worst coronavirus flare-up since last summer, testing the government's success in subduing the disease.

When a handful of new coronavirus cases materialized this month in a province surrounding Beijing — apparently spread at a village wedding party — the Chinese authorities bolted into action.

They locked down two cities with more

I wrote a tweet yesterday stating that #ZeroCovid "is not compatible with the individual rights and freedoms that characterise postwar democracies". My point was apparently largely misunderstood. Thus, I wish to clarify in this thread what I meant.

I provided background why I believe #[illegible] is incompatible with human rights, since many seemed to have completely misunderstood my point. I'm not interested in ideological purity, but in helping us all to get to the other end of the pandemic as unscathed as can be.

I get it. And I know you are looking for a middle ground. But I fear that with the vast majority of the political and media elite in the US and Europe doubling down on the policy mistakes that began last March, loud dissent is required. We have lost any sense of proportion.

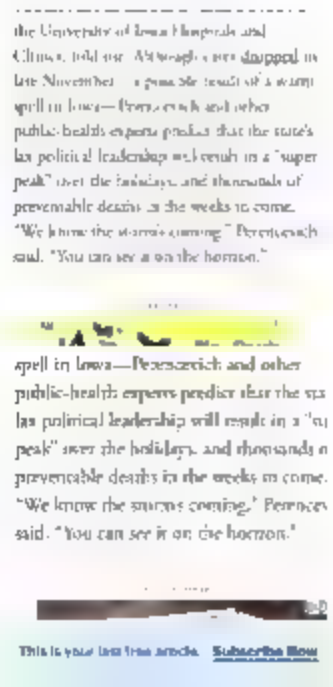
How hot was this panic porn?

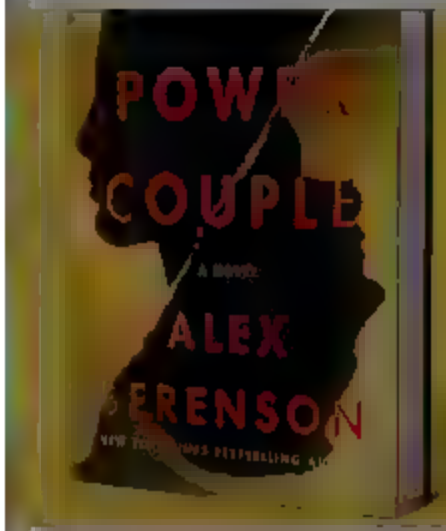
Iowa was a place where "the horror was fresh and the sirens never stopped..."

and expecting



"thousands of preventable deaths in the weeks to come."

Nobody does panic porn like @TheAtlantic. Btw the story ran Dec. 3, with cases already falling.



about what the past few weeks and months at the hospital have been like. And with COVID-19 infections skyrocketing in his state, he added, "I don't know when I will."

[ Read: How many Americans are about to die? ]

To visit Iowa right now is to travel back in time to the early days of the coronavirus pandemic in places such as New York City and Lombardy and Seattle, when the horror was fresh and the sirens never stopped. Sick people are filling up ICUs across the state.

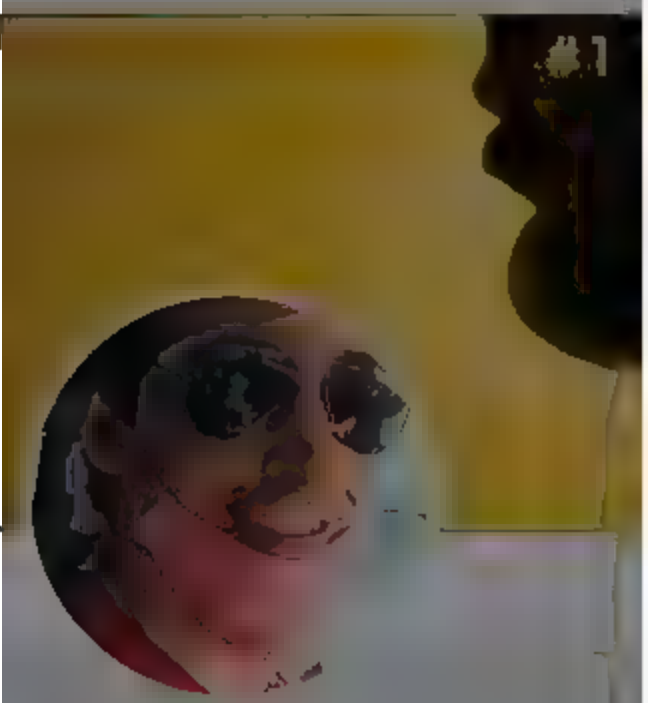
Per Israeli media, the post-vaccination lockdown has worked far less well than the two earlier lockdowns. The rate of positive tests has risen, not fallen, and serious cases have risen too.

the pandemic, according to data presented by the Ynet news site.

The number of patients in serious condition when entering the first lockdown last March was just seven, and 101 when it ended two months later. The second lockdown began in September 2020 with 568 serious cases, and ended with 647 about a month later.



Now, as Israel begins gradually emerging from its third lockdown, which began in early January with 949 serious cases, hospitals are struggling to cope with over 1,000 coronavirus patients in serious condition.

The Ynet data also showed the rate of positive tests during each lockdown, with the first beginning with 3.7%, and ending with just 1.7%. While the second lockdown began with 9.4% and ended with 4.5%. The third lockdown, which began at 4.9%, is set to end with a positive test rate of 7.8%.

Comparing the July-September period, suicides actually ROSE about 6% in 2020 compared to 2019 in Colorado, 356 to 335. That implies another 150 to 200 suicides have yet to be reported in Colorado for 2020 and overall suicides will be up year-over-year.

3/ Remember, all this is happening during a huge worldwide drop in cases. The best question now is: is it the vaccines themselves? Or maybe the PROCESS of vaccinating - sending lots of people (some of whom may have followed the lockdown rules closely) to meet at vaccine clinics?

It's like these institutions are in a contest to see who can have the most absurd rules.

Academy in New London, CT. Before returning to school for the spring semester they had all the returning cadets take a home COVID-19 test. As long as you were negative, you could return to campus. Most of the cadets returned by the 5th of January and were put into a form of extreme lockdown where they had to take meals in their room, maintain social distancing between their fellow cadets, and begin classes on-line. The cadets were also subjected to COVID-19 testing twice a week. Well as of today they are still in extreme lockdown and the facilities they are using to house COVID-19 positive and associated contact traced personnel is filling up to the point where they state has seen cases fall by 48%. The academy's reaction to this has been to lockdown harder. They even closed the gym. These cadets are stuck in their rooms in the cold CT winter with very little to do. They are punished if they fail to follow the social distancing policies and mask mandates. When cases do not go down, the cadets are told it is because they are following the COVID rules, but if cases do go down the academy leadership pats itself on the back and states how successful their policies are. This dystopian world is dangerous and unnecessary to protect a cohort of extremely healthy and fit 18-19-20 year-olds. This same type of 1/ Okay, I will keep repeating this calmly, since people just don't seem to be getting it:

It is not true that much of the Israeli population AT REAL RISK FOR COVID remains to be vaccinated. Basically all 70+ got their first dose at least a month ago and second two weeks ago...

Sorry, here's the actual most updated death data from the government of Israel through Saturday (the grey bar, for Sunday, is incomplete). There were 43 deaths Saturday, and at best a very slow trend down since mid-January.

Are you suggesting that a third-party Website about deaths in Israel is more accurate than the ISRAELI GOVERNMENT'S DATA?

Okay, now I'm losing my temper.

The reason for this is that the trials enrolled almost no one at risk for severe disease (elderly people with serious comorbidities). In the case of the @astrazeneca vaccine, the hole in the data is so huge that a lot of Europe won't even it to people over 65.

The most telling VAERS (vaccine side effect) reports are often for serious injuries rather than deaths. They usually have more details. They also can have a darkly comic feel, like this report of thrombocytopenia (a recurring theme): "I was told to go to a bigger hospital."

that night, I was a little light-headed and achey, but went to bed. On thursday, my legs and arms were extremely achy. I took Tylenol and Motrin in the morning. It seemed to help some, but continued to feel very achy in my legs. I left work early (I am a pediatrician) on Thursday and went home and just sat and rested. I felt terrible, but had talked to other colleagues who felt very bad that first day after the shot. Friday morning, I woke up still achy but feeling better overall. I took motrin and Tylenol again on Friday morning. I worked the whole day seeing patients. Was tired, but got thru the workday. At around 6pm, I noticed petechiae rash on my lower legs. The rash started spreading thru the night- up my legs and to my arms. I went to ER. They did order CBC, CMP. Platelets were undetectable- 1 platelet was seen under microscope. CMP was Hey @nytimes: nice job. Now do miscarriages.

A Few Covid Vaccine Recipients Developed a Rare Blood Disorder

A link to the vaccines is not certain, and investigations are underway in some reported cases.

By Denise Grady

Feb. 8, 2021 Updated 5:07 p.m. ET

From a pharmacist (who did get the vaccine for herself) The VAERS reports contain several cases of severe thrombocytopenia (low platelets). Those don't include Dr. Michael - his case is not in the system.

Would be interested to hear from a hematologist: how often do you see cases of ITP where a patient with no previous symptoms or underlying disease comes in and has platelets in the single digits? Not the single digit thousands, the single digits?

Hm, the images in the paper you linked (in your third tweet) are a little different. (Ex. That one huge outlier in the lowest dose group is missing.)

Seems like they didn't test CRP after dose 2, or am I misunderstanding? Would've liked a day 1-2-8-22-23-30 graph.

Replying to

Yes, I believe those are from the 162b1 data and my last tweet with the spike was 162b2. In at least one case they played around another way, though - after the second dose they didn't test (or didn't publish, anyway) on day 2-3, only day 8. Neat way to miss the dip.

The key is the blue line (new over-60 severe cases) in the middle graph. See how it's flattened out recently on the left screenshot (now, post vaccines) but plunges on the right (last year, no vaccines)?

When critics look back at PANDEMIA and debate when the show jumped the shark, I think the two-mask episode will really stand out, especially on the heels of the Christmas special. You can only sneer at your audience for so long.

The vaccine campaign has collapsed in Israel.

Israelis are NOT anti-vaccine. Up to 98% get normal childhood vaccines.

But they know the Covid vaccines are different. And they are smart enough to wonder why their epidemic won't end almost two months into mass vaccinations.

As demand for vaccines plummets, Israel may resort to incentive programs

Proposals include sending health workers to offices of major companies, bonuses for convincing members of public to vaccinate; firms offer cash, mull bans on those without shots

With Israel's world-leading vaccination drive slowing because of a collapse in demand, the Health Ministry and some private firms are looking at ways to incentivize Israelis to go and get their shots.

The Health Ministry is reportedly weighing a plan to send out medical staff to offices of major companies around the country to vaccinate employees, Channel 13 reported Monday.

This is a lie, as his own government's figures prove. He appears to be defining "vaccinated" as "at least a week after getting two doses," a category that includes only a few days for most people in it.

In truth ~550 Israelis have died after getting at least one vaccine dose...

A different and very interesting perspective from a marketing guru on why the media cannot seem to move past its obsession with #Covid - the "rinse and repeat" cycle. Worth reading to the end.

> First of all, thank you. I don't agree with you on everything, and think at times you've been way too gentle regarding the insanity of the COVID lockdowns, but you've been a sane and rational voice through all of this, and for that, we all owe you an enormous thank you!
> I wanted to share some insight from a marketing perspective on the COVID response. I have graduate and undergraduate degrees in Marketing and Decision Sciences [redacted] Graduate school respectively and am currently the President [redacted] gency. I also teach behavioral economics on a volunteer basis as a continuing education class at my local community college.

2/ You can see this clearly in the 1/31 and 2/5 data - the first tranche (over 60s, under a week after dose 1) has far FEWER severe/critical cases but MORE mild/moderate in the 2/5 update than the 1/31 report.

That's sure not how we classify Covid cases generally.

So @cdcgov is now recommending "intubation kits" at #Covid vaccine sites. Know why? Probably because the VAERS reports include many cases of anaphylactic shock following vaccinations so severe that intubation and ventilation was required.

Nothing to see here, folks.

Nope. They aren't. The Israeli data suggests that if they have any effect at all, they require at least a full week after the second dose to do so (even longer for Moderna). That's 3% of the country at most.

1/ The newest batch of Israeli data is the most troubling yet. So far this month, at least 38 so-called "fully vaccinated" people - that is, a week past the second dose - HAVE DIED OF COVID.

I don't know. Probably because the vaccine trials didn't enroll enough people who were at real risk so they massively overstated effectiveness.

And I don't know. Probably because reporters desperately want the vaccines to work. Maybe because they're afraid of even simple math.

So @dvir_a, an Israeli analyst who has been analyzing the vaccine data and plays it pretty straight, is also concerned about the numbers in the Feb. 9 report (the one I referenced earlier) - he's estimating protection against serious illness as low as 69%.

1. There is no protection until day 21. You only see protection from the 21st day (or the second dose).

those aged 60-.
3. Protection against hospitalization after the second dose: 71-82%. Protection against serious illness: 69-77%.

Yeppers. And since the Democrats won't/can't stand up to teachers unions, they can only win by keeping the Covid panic going into a second year. Which is a big ask, what with the hospitals emptying and the tiny number of deaths in healthy people and all.

Thus the new variants.

Nothing to see here, folks. Just school districts in multiple states being forced to close because so many teachers are having side effects following #Covid vaccinations.

And you thought the vaccine was supposed to help schools open! Silly billies

It's funny, because everything in the thread is true, as you would know if you had looked at the Israeli data or the VAERS reports for yourself.

Imma keep saying it: FACTS AND DATA YOU DO NOT LIKE OR FIND UNCOMFORTABLE ARE NOT MISINFORMATION.

It's funny - do the folks begging @jack to deplatform me think Twitter is not watching me VERY closely? Do they think I'm unaware of that? Do they think I'll risk my audience or my reputation by saying anything I can't back with hard data? Especially on the vaccines.

The government of Israel makes all those publicly available. I report and analyze them, as well as the findings of Israeli data scientists.

It's that simple.

Another endlessly repeated myth. The mRNA trials showed no statistically significant difference between vaccine and placebo in deaths or severe cases, only in mild/moderate cases. That's because they didn't enroll nearly enough of the old/sick people who are really at high risk.

> Openly Black Mikki Kendall @Karnythia
> Vaccines are supposed to prevent severe illness and death from Covid. They can't prevent all infections & none of the manufacturers have claimed that they do. Yes, some people have died post vaccination. From old age. Being 80+ years old always carries that risk. twitter.com/AlexBerenson/s…

> Here are my takeaways from the data:
> 1) Anaphylaxis is a real risk. There was one patient who received epinephrine within 48 hours in each age group, so I think the incidence is somewhere around 1 in 10,000, maybe 1 in 20,000 if we're particularly unlucky here.

BULLSHIT. BULLSHIT. The British government - not anti-vaxxer central - says the rate is up to 30 times this - 1 case of severe allergic reactions in 10,000 injections. (This doesn't include other side effects, which are far more common.) Screenshot to follow. And yes deaths.

Official British government estimate:

administered. Similar reporting was seen in the United States with the same vaccine. Anaphylaxis can also be a very rare side effect associated with most other vaccines.

Following very substantial exposure across the UK population, no other new safety concerns have been identified from reports received so far.

Conclusion

- The increases in number of ADR reports reflects the increase in vaccine deployment as new vaccination centres have opened across the UK
- The number and nature of suspected adverse reactions reported so far are not unusual in comparison to other types of routinely used vaccines

BULLSHIT. BULLSHIT. The British government - not anti-vaxxer central - says the rate is up to 30 times this - 1 case of severe allergic reactions in 10,000 injections. (This doesn't include other side effects, which are far more common.) Screenshot to follow. And yes deaths.

Update of anaphylaxis from mRNA vaccines: 66 cases out of ~18 million vaccinations (=0.00000003%). All but 1 within 11 minutes. No deaths.

Make sure to read the final screenshot. The kicker is amazing.

Did I just witness a Vaccine death In Fairfax, VA?

Mary [redacted]
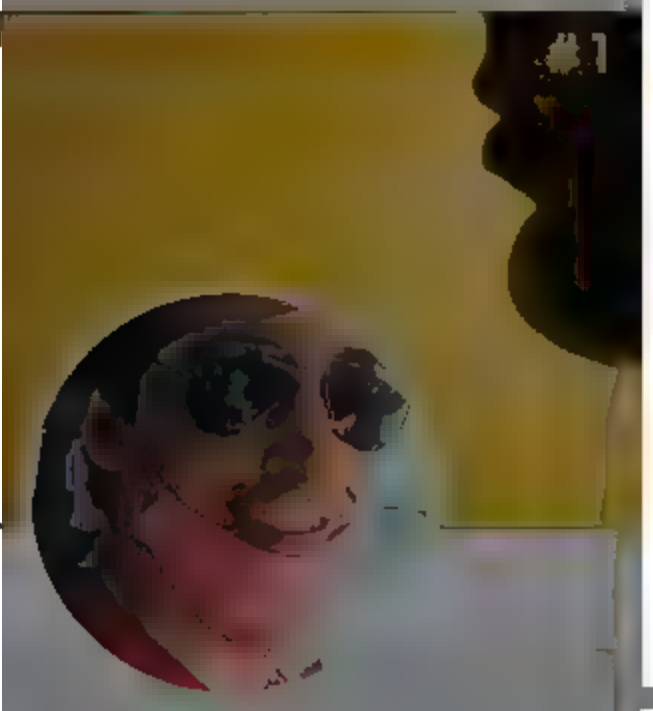
to me
1 hour ago Details

As we were waiting for my husband to get his text to allow him to walk in for his vaccine (with a parking lot full of other people doing the same) a fire truck and ambulance arrived, lights flashing. They pulled an old person out of passenger seat seat of a car, placed them on a stretcher and began frantically performing CPR.



They bundled the person into the back of the ambulance, but then the ambulance just sat there. Police began arriving. I would assume they died.

The evidence has been clear for a while, but I haven't wanted to say it so bluntly: @mtosterholm has not a clue. If the Israeli data make one fact clear it's this: a single dose of the mRNA vaccine does nothing to help the vulnerable. The first dose is all downside...

One does wonder if Dr. O has, how does one put this politely, more personal reasons for delaying his booster? Perhaps the side effects were not to monsieur's liking? Monsieur prefers a more... conventional... vaccine experience?

1/ From a reader, about everyone's favorite Emmy winner, @NYGovCuomo. I don't know if the source is right on the numbers but he is certainly right directionally, Orthodox Jews have aggressively expanded into nursing homes and they are crucial in NY state politics...

There is more corruption then just hiding numbers on nursing home deaths when Cuomo ordered covid patients into nursing homes, no one realized how infectious these patients were. Cuomo had received close to $500,000 campaign contributions from the NYS Nursing home association. On top of that he was repaying favors to a religious sect that brings him almost 100% of their groups votes.

Forcing these patients into the nursing homes means more profit for the homes. The Hasidic community in NYS delivers almost 100% of their 1.1 million votes to Cuomo every election in return for political favors. Over the last 20 years the Hasidic community has been investing in nursing homes. 75%to80% of privately owned nursing homes in NYS are owned by Hasidics. I have seen nursing homes bought by Hasidics and half

Truly astonishing that for the last five years (notably the last three) we have  been rerunning the same experiment we ran in the 1960s, which can be summed as: “Do police and the justice system generally help CAUSE or CONTROL crime?” - with exactly the same results.

You'd start there, if you had any plausible mechanism of action, and a brain in your head.

Or you could just bleat "correlation is not causation" over and over as the cases pile up.

Why not? The strategy worked for Big Tobacco for about 40 years.

As Millions Get Shots, F.D.A. Struggles to Get Safety Monitoring System Running

For now, the government has been relying on a patchwork of programs that officials say are hampered by limited size and gaps in data collection.

"It's the right thing to do, but the fact of the matter is we don't have enough information and we're desperately in need of post-market information and monitoring," said a high-ranking F.D.A. official, who asked not to be named because he was not authorized to discuss the matter publicly.

The government is now relying most on a 30-year-old safety monitoring system that the F.D.A. shares with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and a new smartphone app that people who get Nope. The age stratification of risk in this illness is so massive (and the amount of time at risk so small in this cohort) that if you don't know who was vaccinated you don't know anything. And of course they haven't disclosed it. Can't play games with the national data.

Nothing misleading about what I said, as you know. The misleading part is the 2.5 million vaccinated figure you keep quoting. As of Feb. 9, the most recent report date, most of those people fell in the “fully vaccinated” category for under two weeks, so ~40 deaths is quite a lot.

Nothing misleading about what I said, as you know. The misleading part is the 2.5 million vaccinated figure you keep quoting. As of Feb. 9, the most recent report date, most of those people fell in the "fully vaccinated" category for under two weeks, so −40 deaths is quite a lot.

Studies of flu vaccine effectiveness have exactly the same problem. Older people who are vaccinated are less likely to die afterwards than those who aren't - BUT THEY ARE ALSO LESS LIKELY TO DIE BEFORE THE VACCINATIONS. The vaccine is a marker for health rather than a driver.

1/ So @cdcgov now says it has 1,170 deaths reported after vaccinations. They use a denominator of 41 million doses, those cuties. In reality about -12 million people had received two doses as of Feb. 11, so the death rate is more like 1 in 10,000 completed vaccinations...

> from December 14, 2020, through February 7, 2021. During this time, VAERS received 1,170 reports of death (0.003%) among people who received a COVID-19 vaccine. CDC and FDA physicians review each case report of death as soon as notified and CDC requests medical records to further assess reports. A review of available clinical information including death certificates, autopsy, and medical records findings revealed no link with vaccination. CDC and FDA will continue to investigate reports of adverse events, including deaths, reported to VAERS.

How much more likely are you to die after getting the #Covid vaccine than the flu vaccine?

300-900 times, based on federal VAERS reports. Yes, 900.

Covid: 1 death reported per 35,000 shots or 10,000 completed vaccinations (so far).

Flu: 1 death per 9,000,000 vaccinations.

That's a safe vaccine. Those deaths are likely coincidental, a simple result of the number of shots given.

The #Covid vax, not so much.

I suspect you're already aware of the claim that the Pfizer and Moderna vaccines, or all 7 vaccines are 100% effective against severe Covid and death, or similar variations. Here are 2 examples repeating this claim:

Let's deal with some objections to the deaths after flu vax/deaths after Covid vax comparison.

1) I agree Covid vaccine deaths are probably more likely to be reported than flu vaccine deaths. Are they 900 times more likely? Very doubtful...

For example here in MA almost 30% of the vaccines went to the younger than 50 y.o group. Not exactly frail.
What would you say the flu-vaccinated population ages would be?

James Surowiecki @JamesSurowiecki · 1 Min.
22% of the people who get the flu vaccine are over the age of 65. 35% of the people (at least in MA) who've gotten the Covid vaccine are over 65. And while a wide range of 65-yr-olds get the flu vaccine, those who've gotten the Covid vaccine have been older and/or in LTCF.

Roughly a quarter of the ppl who get the flu vaccine are kids above the age of 6 months (weighted toward little kids), whose risk of death is minuscule. Almost no kids have gotten the Covid vaccine.

The two populations are, in other words, radically different when it comes to mortality risk, independent of the vaccines.

Anton Kucherov @kucherov_anton · 11 Min.

I checked your theory.
Only 111 out of the 600+ reported deaths have an onset period of more than 7 days. The other 453 are within the first 7 days. The remaining have no onset date.

So the 7+ day group is a small portion of the reports. Majority are under 7 days (same as flu).

James Surowiecki @JamesSurowiecki · 1 Min.

I wouldn't say 111 out of 600 is a small number, but regardless, the onset-date issue matters much less than the causality requirement. But I also don't know where Alex is getting the 1107 number that he's using - when I use Wonder, I get 600 or so deaths, too.

From a physician today. Per a follow-up question, the patient was ~70 and his only medicines were a statin and ASA.

> came in with a massive intraparenchymal hemorrhage about 36 hours after receiving his second dose of the Pfizer vaccine. Poor guy had complete left sided hemiparesis and total unilateral left sided neglect. He was vomiting secondary to the increased intracranial pressure and all he kept repeating was "I'm ok, I'm ok, I got the vaccine. I got both doses of the vaccine." Intubated, ventilated, emergency ventriculostomy, mannitol, anti-seizure meds. His prognosis is abysmal. Was it related to the vaccine? Don't you dare ask that question!!!
> Wonder if he will show up in the VAERS database. I have no way of verifying his vaccination status other than what he said to me right before he lost consciousness.

How many people over 85 did @pfizer enroll in its 40,000-person #Covid vaccine trial?

Five.

1, 2, 3, 4, 5.

True story.

People over 85 account for 30-50% of ALL Covid deaths and are at by far the most risk.

How do we know the vaccine helps those people?

Great question.

Compare Israel to the UK, where new admissions have fallen roughly 60% in a month, or the US, where overall hospitalizations are down 50% in five weeks, and you'll understand just how poorly Israel is faring comparatively. If this is vaccine success, I'd hate to see failure.

A longer view of the Israeli vaccine campaign. It began Dec. 19. Nearly the entire at-risk population got both doses by ~Jan. 25 (very efficient, impressive). They should be immune by now.

On Sunday Israel had ~2x severe cases (total and new) and 4x deaths as on Dec. 19.

Why?

No, of course not.

Or why it is that nursing homes across Europe and the US had terrible and deadly outbreaks in some cases days after vaccines were administered.

None of this is at all conspiratorial. It's all sourced, mostly to government documents.

So why, exactly, can we not talk about it?

Fair points here. I worked for @nytimes for more than a decade; it will always matter to me. I'm deeply sorry to see ideology get in the way of its mission and the many, many reporters dedicated to accuracy and honest journalism.

Getting our kids back to school – a matter of trust has led to a sense of confusion.

To address this confusion which is so frustrating for parents, teachers and students, we need to go back to the evidence, and then we need to go beyond that, and build our community's trust in our schooling

From a 27-year-old in Pennsylvania: "At first the lockdown was a joke. We'd laugh at it... (Now) I start to wake up bitter, sad, and hopeless."

We are slowly but surely ruining a generation of young adults.

I first heard of your work on the JRE podcast. It was refreshing to see you calmly present statistics on why many of these policies and rules are completely absurd and useless. You are one of the only credible figures I've heard speak about the strain that these regulations are putting on people's mental health.

I'm a 27 year old male that lives in Pennsylvania. Our state has had some of the most ridiculous and asinine guidelines. From packing nursing homes, to a second lockdown (funny that the woman who championed this order got a big promotion under Sleepy Joe's administration). We just love following the science! (Obviously kidding). But, I digress.

This situation is ruining the lives of countless peers my age. I have been seeing friends whenever I can. At first, the lockdown was a joke. We'd laugh at it, their jobs or been furloughed. Every single one of my close friends who were in relationships at the start of this, aren't now. I get multiple calls a day from friends that complain of how depressed they are. The ones that didn't drink much, now drink by themselves.

I have always been an optimist, and realize that I have it easier and better than most. I don't have kids and a wife to support, and am blessed with a good mindset. But almost a year later, I start to wake up bitter, sad, and hopeless. I have many acquaintances that cross over into countless friend groups, and this is not an isolated antidote. This is going to be a serious problem that the authorities have on their hands. It's shocking that political figures haven't even dug into this issue. Keep up the good work. this country needs people that aren't afraid to ask the questions that are "unacceptable"

This inspires confidence! Last week, @cdcgov said it had received 1,170 reports of post-#Covid vaccination deaths. Yesterday, it "revised" the figure to 934. Easter came early, or something.

Over 52 million doses of COVID-19 vaccines were administered in the United States from December 14, 2020, through February 14, 2021. During this time, VAERS received 934 reports of death* (0.0018%) among people who received a COVID-19 vaccine. CDC and FDA physicians review each case report of death as soon as notified and CDC requests medical records to further assess reports. A review of available clinical information including death certificates, autopsy, and medical records findings revealed no link with vaccination. CDC and FDA will continue to investigate reports of adverse events, including deaths, reported to VAERS, from December 14, 2020, through February 7, 2021. During this time, VAERS received 1,170 reports of death (0.003%) among people who received a COVID-19 vaccine. CDC and FDA physicians review each case report of death as soon as notified and CDC requests medical records to further assess reports. A review of available clinical information including death certificates, autopsy, and medical records findings revealed no link with vaccination. CDC and FDA will continue to investigate reports of adverse events, including deaths, reported to VAERS.

Yay @cnn! They didn't just cover the Capitol Hill riot, they helped fund a guy charged with inciting it! Participatory journalism at its finest.

But the court ordered John Sullivan of Utah, a videographer, to stop work with his insurgent USA website and social media platforms.

Yep, this was inevitable. The "remarkable" Israeli drop in positive tests is about 45% in the last month. The US drop: almost 70%. The UK: almost 75%. Worldwide: about 45%.

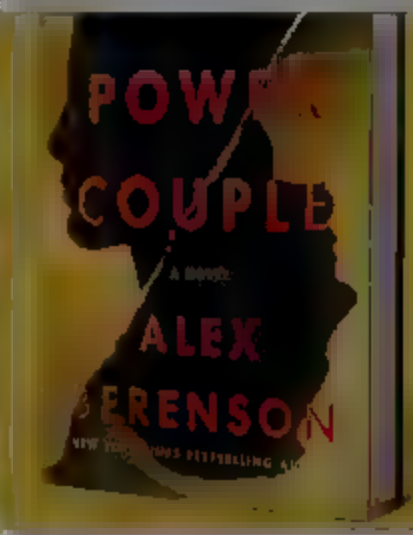
There is one piece of bad news among the plunge in positive tests and hospitalizations, though.

Deaths are down far, far less.



And it's not the lag. Not anymore.

Which means it's something else.

Anyone have any ideas? Cause one change in the last six weeks does stick out.

Finally someone said it: the United States is more likely than not close to herd immunity. There will be no fourth wave. Thank your immune systems, not the vaccines.

BIDEN'S PUSHBACK ON STUDENT LOANS

OPINION | COMMENTARY

We'll Have Herd Immunity by April

Covid cases have dropped 77% in six weeks. Experts should level with the public about the good news.

has been largely ignored: Cases are down 77% over the past six weeks. If a medication slashed cases by 77%, we'd call it a miracle pill. Why is the number of cases plummeting much faster than experts predicted?

In large part because natural immunity from prior infection is far more common than can be measured by testing. Testing has been capturing only from 10% to 25% of infections, depending on when during the pandemic someone got the virus. Applying a time-weighted case capture average of 1 in 6.5 to the cumulative 26 million confirmed cases

There is reason to think the country is racing toward an extremely low level of infection. As more people have been infected, most of whom have mild or no symptoms, there are fewer Americans left to be infected. At the current trajectory, I expect Covid will be mostly gone by April, allowing Americans to resume normal life.

It's even more meaningless than an "arbitrary range." It's a historical control. Maybe these rats were healthier. Maybe they were fed better. Who knows? But the fact that a previous set of dams lost 25% means much less than the placebo v active arm in THIS TEST.

A Brief History of Racist Soft Drinks

Lots of people know about how Coca-Cola used to contain cocaine or how Pepsi was the hip drink in the 1960s. Few realize that Coke marketed assiduously to whites, while Pepsi hired a "negro markets" department.

I'll just say it again: European drug regulators said explicitly that @moderna_tx NEVER ran an adequate toxicological study on its #Covid vaccine even in animals. And the studies it did submit showed serious hematological impact. But the application went ahead anyway.

I'm old enough to remember when @apoorva_nyc was doing everything possible to play up the risk of reopening schools, over and over. How'd that work out for everyone?

Your kids lost a year of school (and maybe more), that's how.

The two-mask thing hurt too - it calls into question the mask guidance and more importantly it's absurd on its (your) face. Once people started laughing at the KGB the USSR was done...

Because this isn't about 2020. It's about the future. What about the next halfway dangerous flu? What about the next time a Chinese lab has an oopsie?

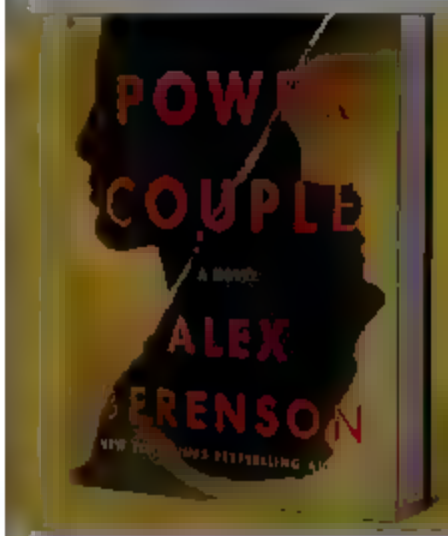
Thanks for the update. Did they give you any reason they wouldn't provide them?

Also, I don't suppose you can reverse-engineer any data from the charts they included.



It does look like the epidemic is finally waning nationally, which is good - but that's the case everywhere...

But once you get three or four-plus weeks past dose two, you have three confounds - the epidemic looks to be waning naturally (it certainly should be), a relatively small population*days at risk, and serious cases/deaths are likely still developing... can you adjust for all that?

Smart point about the Israeli data here. The flip side is equally true - trying to measure effectiveness simply by counting positive tests over time in a post-vaccinated cohort will produce an overstatement of efficacy if the epidemic is waning generally.

Primary

I don't understand the Israel data, nor any data that determines the effectiveness of COVID vaccinations based on x days from vaccine. Are they random sampling every person vaccinated to check for infection. I know hundreds of people who've been vaccinated, zero of whom who've taken a test following vaccination to check for infection. And saying "14 days out" means those people need to be tested every day indefinitely for that to be a statistically defensible statement.

This is the equivalent of saying that never getting tested has 100% effectiveness for preventing COVID... which, it turns out, it does... unless you're on a college campus, playing a sport, attempting to l attend a school, or being randomly contract traced in

Not fighting it. The vaccines obviously have some protective effect (it would be shocking if they didn't). But the difference between (say) 65% and 95% efficacy is massive given the side effect profile

I'm not sure how @pfizer can justify running a vaccine trial in late-term pregnant women based on the preclinical data, the miscarriages that have already been reported, and the very low risk of #Covid to healthy pregnant women. At the least don't they need more animal studies?

A defense lawyer writes in to point out that lockdowns have messed up the criminal justice system as much as everything else... and no one in it seems to care. “Apparently that right (to a speedy trial) doesn’t exist anymore.”

Hi Alex,

First, I want to thank you for being a voice of reason over the past year. During a time where everyone seems to have lost their minds, I appreciate that everything you say is grounded in facts rather than politics or hearsay. With that being said, I am writing to highlight the catastrophic impact that COVID protocols are having on our legal system right now. For background, I graduated law school in May 2020 and am a licensed Arizona attorney (as of December 2020). My work focuses exclusively on criminal law. If you choose to share, please redact my name and email (for obvious reasons). Feel free to share everything else.

It’s shocking that the legal system has received such little coverage during the pandemic. In Arizona (and many other states), almost all jury trials have been suspended and delayed. Criminal trials were backlogged before COVID. You can imagine how impactful a year’s worth of delays will be. Defendants indicted years ago are still waiting for their day in court. You might ask, why don’t defendants assert their Sixth Amendment right to a speedy trial? Apparently, that right doesn’t exist anymore.

6/ Again, this is not to say the vaccines don't have some protective effect. But given the side effect profile, people have a right to know what the data REALLY says - especially in countries that are moving aggressively to push vaccinations.

1/ WHY DO THEY KEEP DOING THIS? WHY WILL THEY NOT BE HONEST?

You're about to hear a whole bunch of - how do I put this politely? - optimistic stories about vaccinations out of Scotland. National-level data show 85% efficacy, etc.

THE DATA TELL A ENTIRELY DIFFERENT STORY...

Methods: We conducted a prospective cohort study using the Early Pandemic Evaluation and Enhanced Surveillance of COVID-19 (EAVE II) database comprising of linked vaccination, primary care, Real-Time Polymerase Chain Reaction (RT-PCR) testing, hospitalisation and mortality records for 5.4 million people in Scotland (covering ~99% of population). A time-dependent Cox model and Poisson regression models were fitted to estimate effectiveness against COVID-19 related hospitalisation (defined as 1- Adjusted Hazard Ratio) following the first dose of vaccine.

Findings: The first dose of the BNT162b2 vaccine was associated with a vaccine effect of 85% (95% confidence interval [CI] 76 to 91) for COVID-19 related hospitalisation at 28-34 days post-vaccination. Vaccine effect at the same time interval for the ChAdOx1 vaccine was 94% (95% CI 73 to 99). Results of combined vaccine effect for prevention of COVID-19 related hospitalisation were comparable when restricting the analysis to those aged ≥80 years (81%; 95% CI 65 to 90 at 28-34 days post-vaccination).

Interpretation: A single dose of the BNT162b2 mRNA and ChAdOx1 vaccines resulted in substantial reductions in the risk of COVID-19 related hospitalisation in Scotland.

Funding: UK Research and Innovation (Medical Research Council); Research and Innovation Industrial Strategy Challenge Fund; Health Data Research UK.

First off, they didn't find an 85% decrease in hospitalizations even after adjusting for age and preexisting conditions. It was 69%. To get 85% they ran a hocus-pocus they called an "inverse propensity adjustment." Bully for you if you know what that is.

EVEN MORE IMPORTANTLY...

The study did NOT end after day 34 (five weeks after vaccination). And guess what? HOSPITALIZATIONS BEGAN TO RISE AGAIN. And not a little, either. By six weeks out the vaccines were less than 50% effective - and even their "adjustments" could only get the figure to 58%...

So the correct way to report on the Scottish data is that it shows a single dose of the #Covid vaccines are 85% effective FOR ONE WEEK AT THE PEAK OF THEIR USEFULNESS and then rapidly decline.

TL: DR - you are once again being fed nonsense about how well the #Covid vaccines work. And by the way the evidence is clear: delaying the second shot is insane.

Of all the dishonest #Covid data charts @FT have presented - including a doozy from May - the Scottish vaccination chart is the worst. It looks like a slide BECAUSE @jburnmurdoch DIDN'T INCLUDE THE FINAL TWO DATAPOINTS. In reality, it's a V - infections rise again after 30 days.

Alex Berenson ✓
@AlexBerenson

No, @financialtimes didn't revise the chart. They completely changed (corrected) the data it presents - not the analysis, the ACTUAL UNDERLYING DATA - under the guise of turning absolute figures of infections by country into "infections per million"?

These games have now gone on for a year - at @ft @nytimes @washingtonpost etc, all the great names in journalism - and it is now hard to see them as anything but a decision that when actual data does not support public health shibboleths, the data will be ignored.

REPORTING FACTS FROM CLINICAL TRIALS VERBATIM IS NOT MISINFORMATION. It is the opposite.

Conclusions This study is the first RCT of cloth masks, and the results caution against the use of cloth masks. This is an important finding to inform occupational health and safety. Moisture retention, reuse of cloth masks and poor filtration may result in increased risk of infection. Further research is needed to inform the widespread use of cloth masks globally. However, as a precautionary measure, cloth masks should not be recommended for HCWs, particularly in high-risk situations, and guidelines need to be updated.

In VT at the biweekly press Conference it was stated that if a vaccinated person has symptoms they don't have to be tested. Where's the science there. It's all vaccine all the time. Their getting lower in ages. If parents vaccinated they can travel but kids cant until Vaxed.

How about Israeli data showing thousands of cases? Or Scottish data showing the single-dose vaccine effectiveness falls sharply after five weeks? You think 95% effectiveness is real? Come on, how long have you covered this industry?

I'm old enough to remember when @apoorva_nyc was doing everything possible to play up the risk of reopening schools, over and over. How'd that work out for everyone?

Your kids lost a year of school (and maybe more), that's how.
